Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, who today announced his candidacy for president of the United States and invited all disaffected Democrats and Republicans to join him in an attempt to drive the New Deal out of power.

WINDSOR, Jan. 28.—King George V was buried with his ancestors within the gray walls of Windsor castle today while kings and queens and princes stood by and an empire of 400,000,000 persons stood still in mourning.

The facilities of the British Broadcasting Corporation carried the simple funeral services all over the world. People on the Canadian prairies, the South African veldts and the islands of the West Indies heard the last rites for the monarch.

The elaborate pageantry of the state funeral procession from Westminster hall through the streets of London and of Windsor ended in striking simplicity when the brief rite of the Church of England, which is said over king and commoner alike, was read by the Archbishop of Canterbury in St. George's chapel here.

The coffin then sank slowly into the vaults, leaving as the last earthly reminder of George V the great crown of England, the priceless star of Africa gleaming in its setting, lying before the altar.

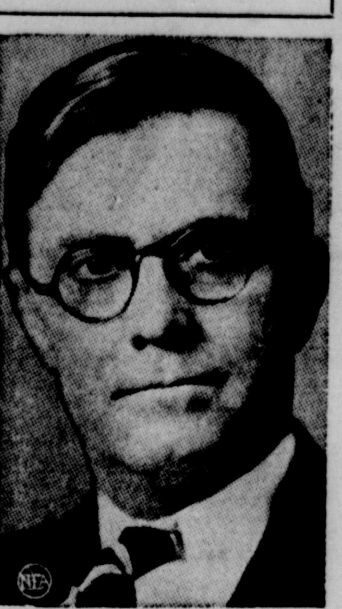

The notes of the "Last Post" sounded outside the chapel and then the royal mourners stood for two minutes of silence before dispersing without any further formal procession.

Train Is Delayed
Because of the press of crowds and the painful slowness of the funeral march through London the funeral train was 33 minutes late at Windsor station, an event almost without precedent.

Since early morning the narrow crooked cobbled streets of Windsor had been packed with the greatest crowd seen there.

GOV. TALMADGE IS CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT

MACON, Ga., Jan. 28.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge announced his candidacy for president of the United States today, and invited all disaffected Democrats and Republicans to join him in an attempt to drive the New Deal out of power.

The governor's statement—his first open avowal of a presidential candidacy—came in an interview with the United Press as he was preparing to rally the South against President Roosevelt at a convention of "constitutional Democrats" here tomorrow.

Pushing his black hair out of his eyes, Talmadge said he would storm New England and the West on a speaking tour in an attempt to knit New Deal opposition for the November election.

Under what party label he will campaign is still undecided, the governor said, but he will attempt to get either Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Republican or former Governor Joseph P. Ely of Massachusetts.

FARM SECRETARY RAPS HIGH COURT
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today reasserted his opinion that the proposed new farm legislation is legal, but added that "being constitutional means one court means another."

TESTIMONY STARTED IN OUSTER SUIT

Statistical Evidence Offered by Prosecution in Whitney Trial
PROSECUTION today began building up statistical evidence of alleged false affidavits, constituting felony offenses, which the district attorney's office declares would justify the ouster of County Recorder Justice Whitney, whose trial started yesterday in Superior Judge G. K. Scovel's court.

A jury of three women and nine men were selected late yesterday, before court adjourned, to decide the fate of the veteran county official, accused by the grand jury of wilful and corrupt misconduct in office, because of delayed monthly settlements with the county treasury.

Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis and Deputy Harold McCabe, conducting the prosecution, wasted no time today in showing the outline of their case against Miss Whitney, after the formality of proving, through County Clerk J. M. Backs, that she is the county recorder.

Backs On Stand
Following Backs to the witness stand was Chief Deputy Auditor Leslie Eckel, who identified monthly cash statements and affidavits of Miss Whitney for the various months of 1935 in which she is alleged to have used the receipts of such months to make her settlement for the preceding months.

The prosecution contends that not only were these settlements delayed beyond the legal period, which is the fifth of the month following the month being accounted for, but also that they are false affidavits, and therefore constitute felonies.

This, it is explained, is because it is charged that the affidavits state that the settlement for each month was made from receipts collected during that month, whereas actually a portion of the receipts were collected during the ensuing month.

Defense Counsel O. A. Jacobs made no objection to the introduction of the affidavits and attached receipts, but did object vigorously to the state's attempts to question Eckel regarding matters apart from the record itself. Jacobs succeeded in blocking an effort to have Eckel testify why an affidavit and receipts were filed on March 8, 1935, for the February settlement, and then were filed again on March 13. His answer that the treasurer had refused to

LAMSON TRIAL JURY SELECTION DELAYED
SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 28.—Slowly by complications of jury selection, David A. Lamson's fourth trial on wife murder charges began its second session today.

Prayers For Rain Will Be Offered By Church Folk Here Tomorrow

CHURCH FOLK of Santa Ana will unite tomorrow evening in a prayer for rain. Divine intervention in the drought that has persisted throughout the winter, will be asked in supplications raised from various churches during the regular Wednesday evening prayer services.

The executive committee of the Santa Ana Ministerial Union took steps today to procure a general prayer for rain, according to the Rev. C. D. Hicks, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, vice-president of the union. The committee sent a call to all local churches, he said, to devote a portion of the Wednesday prayer services to such a prayer.

It is the first time in the history of Santa Ana, so far as could be recalled today, that such a concerted step has been openly and publicly taken. It was called forth by one of the longest droughts in the history of Southern California.

The rain clouds were gathering threateningly today, and "light showers" were forecast by the weather bureau—but that has happened too often this winter, without fulfillment of the promise, for reassurance of the people.

So the church folk, confident of the efficacy of prayer, will place their faith in divine aid, in this hour of need.

COAL SHORTAGE FRESNO SLAYER IN IOWA TODAY BACK AGAIN IN MOST CRITICAL FOLSOM PRISON

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 28.—Coal was almost as precious as diamonds in Iowa today. Many families, unable to obtain fuel for furnaces, huddled about oil and gas stoves in kitchens.

Seven days of sub-zero weather have exhausted supplies of coal in most wholesale and retail yards. Dealers said deliveries could not be made for from three days to a week.

SPEED PLANS FOR PAYING OFF BONUS

Solons Believe Proposals for New Taxes Should Come from President
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Congress sought today to stave off new tax legislation to meet increasing federal expenditures resulting from destruction of the AAA and from passage of the $2,237,000,000 soldiers bonus bill.

A proposal that new taxes to help cover rapidly increasing federal expenditures be delayed until next session was made by Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the house ways and means committee. After an executive session of his committee Doughton said he personally would "not take the initiative of tax matters."

The administration, of course, can make recommendations whenever it wants to," he said. "I think a thorough study of the revenue situation and new taxes should be made and action be delayed until next session. I am not disposed to launch any tax program now."

Doughton's statement came while governmental machinery was speeding payment of the bonus enacted yesterday over President Roosevelt's veto and while experts were puzzling over where the money to pay the veterans would come from.

The ways and means committee chairman offered only one suggestion and that was that a study be made between now and next January of how government expenditures might be cut. Congress, with an eye to the coming elections, has made it clear that any proposals for new taxation should come from the White House.

Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. however, had indicated he would be receptive to an invitation from the ways and means committee to go up to the capitol and talk over revenue matters in view of the bonus and AAA situations. The committee originally all tax legislation in congress.

Committee members, however, said the question of new taxes was not discussed at today's 45-minute session.

AMERICAN CANAL HEARING ASSURED
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes said today he would schedule a hearing soon on the routing of the all-American canal either through or around Calexico, Cal.

GOVERNOR DIES
Oscar Kelly Allen, governor of Louisiana, and successor to Huey Long as U. S. Senator, who died today at his home of a cerebral hemorrhage.

REPORT 10,000 BLACKS KILLED BY ITALIANS

ROME, Jan. 28.—Italy cheered a smashing offensive of her southern African armies today, which, according to native reports from Neghelli, Ethiopia, has destroyed the Ethiopian army of 25,000 men and paved the way for a possible advance on Addis Ababa.

The Neghelli advices indicated Ras Desta, Mentu, son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, is convinced his country has lost and plans to retire to a copric convent for life. Of his great army of Ethiopian warriors, barely a thousand men are left, the report said. This remnant has retired to Irgalen, capital of the Sidamo district.

Official communiques issued here said 10,000 Ethiopians have been killed or wounded on the southern front in the battle for possession of the strategic Ganale Dorya river valley.

Italian Losses
Italian losses, the communiques said, were not disclosed.

FORMER DETECTIVE AIDS FITTS CASE
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—An explanation as to why District Attorney Byron Fitts had morals charges against John P. Mills, San Diego realtor, dismissed was hinted as Fitts' trial on perjury charges continued today.

Lucien C. Wheeler, former federal agent employed by Mills as a private investigator, testified under defense questioning that his client had pleaded guilty to the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor in San Diego.

Successor to Huey Long as Leader of State Politics Dies Suddenly

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 28.—Oscar Kelly Allen, 54-year-old governor of Louisiana and successor to the throne of the late dictator, Huey Pierce Long, died today of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Death occurred less than a fortnight after Allen swept the Long faction into power for another four years. He was overwhelmingly nominated to the U. S. senate seat vacated by Long's assassination.

Allen died at the executive mansion at 10:40 a. m. Passing of Allen removed another outstanding opponent of the New Deal, which the late Senator Long fought with biting vigor. On his nomination, Allen announced that the main objective of his going to Washington would be to demand a congressional investigation of the dictator's fatal shooting.

"I hope they make me chairman of the committee, so that justice will be done," he said. Governor Allen was nominated to the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Huey P. Long at last week's Democratic primary.

No New Governor
He planned to go to Washington immediately after the general election to be held in March with the avowed purpose of carrying on Senator Long's feud with the national administration.

As result of his death, Lt. Gov. James Noel of Monroe will become governor and serve until May. At that time, Appellate Judge Richard W. Leche, who was nominated in the recent primary, will take over the office.

Lt. Gov. Noel chartered an airplane at Monroe and started for Baton Rouge immediately after receiving word of Allen's death. Allen was at work at the state capitol yesterday, apparently in good health. At the executive mansion this morning he prepared to go to the capitol.

Stricken At Home
He was stricken before he left the mansion and Dr. C. A. Loria was summoned. Dr. Loria gave the cause of death as cerebral hemorrhage. His bulletin read: "Hyper tension and cerebral

A. F. OF L. LEADER FLAYED BY MINERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The chieftains of the United Mine Workers of America took a vigorous whack at William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today and indirectly assailed the U. S. supreme court for declaring NRA unconstitutional.

In a frank and occasionally bitter report to the 34th annual convention, President John L. Lewis, Vice President Philip Murray and Secretary Thomas Kennedy urged legislation curbing the courts and putting control of legislation on "a sounder basis and higher plane."

The report was submitted after Lewis had opened the convention with a warning of problems of vital interest to the working men of America which still must be solved and had taken a gloomy attitude toward possible invalidation of the Guffey coal control act by the supreme court.

EARL LEE KELLY APPROVES SOUTH MAIN STREET PROJECT
STREET improvements involving the expenditure of approximately $85,000 were definitely assured today for Santa Ana with an announcement from Earl Lee Kelly, director of public works for the state, that he has approved the program which will be financed entirely with gas tax money and with WPA funds allocated to the state for highway improvement.

FARM SECRETARY RAPS HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today reasserted his opinion that the proposed new farm legislation is legal, but added that "being constitutional means one court means another."

Wallace offered his views as he left a senate agriculture committee where he had reaffirmed his belief in the new program.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed, who argued the AAA case before the supreme court, "indicated" to the committee that the proposed substitute was constitutional. Committeemen said he would not express a direct opinion.

LAMSON TRIAL JURY SELECTION DELAYED

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 28.—Slowly by complications of jury selection, David A. Lamson's fourth trial on wife murder charges began its second session today.

Although court attaches had expected jury selection to move more swiftly at this hearing, only 111 names remained of the original list of 270 chosen for the trial venire.

A majority of prospective jurors excused were released because of objections to the death penalty in cases founded on circumstantial evidence. Others pleaded they already had formed opinions.

EIGHT INJURED IN SUBMARINE BLAST
MANILA, P. I., Jan. 28.—An explosion in submarine W-40, of the United States navy, injured eight Filipino workmen, one seriously, today. Five were taken to hospitals.

Causes of the explosion were not determined immediately. The D-40 was in drydock at the Cavite navy yard.

A navy board will investigate the accident and determine the extent of damage to the submarine.

COUNCIL FAILS TO ACT ON LAW BANNING 'BANK DAYS'
NOT EVEN an audible whisper of the "Bank Day" situation in Santa Ana was heard at city council meeting last night, although several local market representatives appeared in the audience.

AMERICAN CANAL HEARING ASSURED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes said today he would schedule a hearing soon on the routing of the all-American canal either through or around Calexico, Cal.

A committee appointed by Ickes and the late reclamation commissioner Elwood Mead decided the canal should go outside the town.

The committee claimed that the canal would cost an extra $1,000,000 if put through Calexico and said there were "engineering difficulties" to the plan.

FORMER DETECTIVE AIDS FITTS CASE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—An explanation as to why District Attorney Byron Fitts had morals charges against John P. Mills, San Diego realtor, dismissed was hinted as Fitts' trial on perjury charges continued today.

Lucien C. Wheeler, former federal agent employed by Mills as a private investigator, testified under defense questioning that his client had pleaded guilty to the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor in San Diego.

At the time the San Diego case was being tried, a similar charge was pending in municipal court here, Wheeler said. Mills appeared as a prosecution witness in the San Diego trial, it was brought out, against other defendants involved in the "love mart" case.

OFFICERS OF MORRO CASTLE ARE JAILED

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Three officers of the Ward liner morro Castle were sentenced to jail today for criminal negligence in the burning of the luxury liner with a loss of 184 lives off the New Jersey coast on September 8, 1934.

Chief Engineer Ben S. Abbott, charged with deserting his post, received the longest term, four years. Acting Capt. W. F. Warnes, thrown into command of the ship shortly before the disaster by the sudden death of the captain, was given two years.

Henry E. Cabaud, executive vice president of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship company, which operated the line, was sentenced to one year in jail and fined $5000 with a provision that the jail sentence would be suspended if he paid the fine.

chussets as vice presidential candidate on his ticket.

"I can count on 1,000,000 votes in the South," Talmadge said, chewing vigorously at a cigar. "And you can take it from me that New England is as sick of this New Deal as I am."

Avowed Candidate

"Do you mean you're ready to run for president?" Talmadge was asked.

"Sure, any sane man is willing to do that and I'm sane."

"Who would you like to have on the ticket with you?"

"Borah would be a good man. And that fellow Elr up in Massachusetts talks my language."

Talmadge appeared unconcerned by the fact that Borah already is out for the Republican presidential nomination. The governor believes the November election will splinter party lines, and he said he was willing to offer haven to persons of any and all political faiths so long as they "stick by the constitution."

Talmadge, who has fought Mr. Roosevelt here in his adopted state, plans to carry the battle right up to the front door and deliver a speech in New York City.

Already he is making up a crowded schedule of speaking engagements. He will swing up through the south, invade Illinois and later push out into the Rocky Mountain states and perhaps go as far as California.

Real Democrats

"The Roosevelt crowd can have any party name they want," Talmadge said, opening up a bottle of soft drink and sipping. "They're Socialists. It doesn't matter what my folks call themselves. Everybody knows we're Democrats—real Democrats."

Talmadge was asked what course of action he was going to take when he opens his "grass roots" convention, to which delegates from 17 states have been invited.

"I'm going to lay it on the New Deal good and thick," he said.

"The same way Al Smith did up in Washington?"

"Yes, sir, that was a fine speech Al Smith made."

Talmadge's strategy at the grass roots convention tomorrow will be to attempt to solidify opposition to the New Deal in a fight to try to take the Democratic nomination away from President Roosevelt at Philadelphia. None of his followers is optimistic of success.

Once Mr. Roosevelt is nominated, the Talmadge forces will swing into action.

Can Break South

Even if Talmadge is beaten in November, he believes he can shave enough votes away from the New Deal to break the solid South and defeat Mr. Roosevelt.

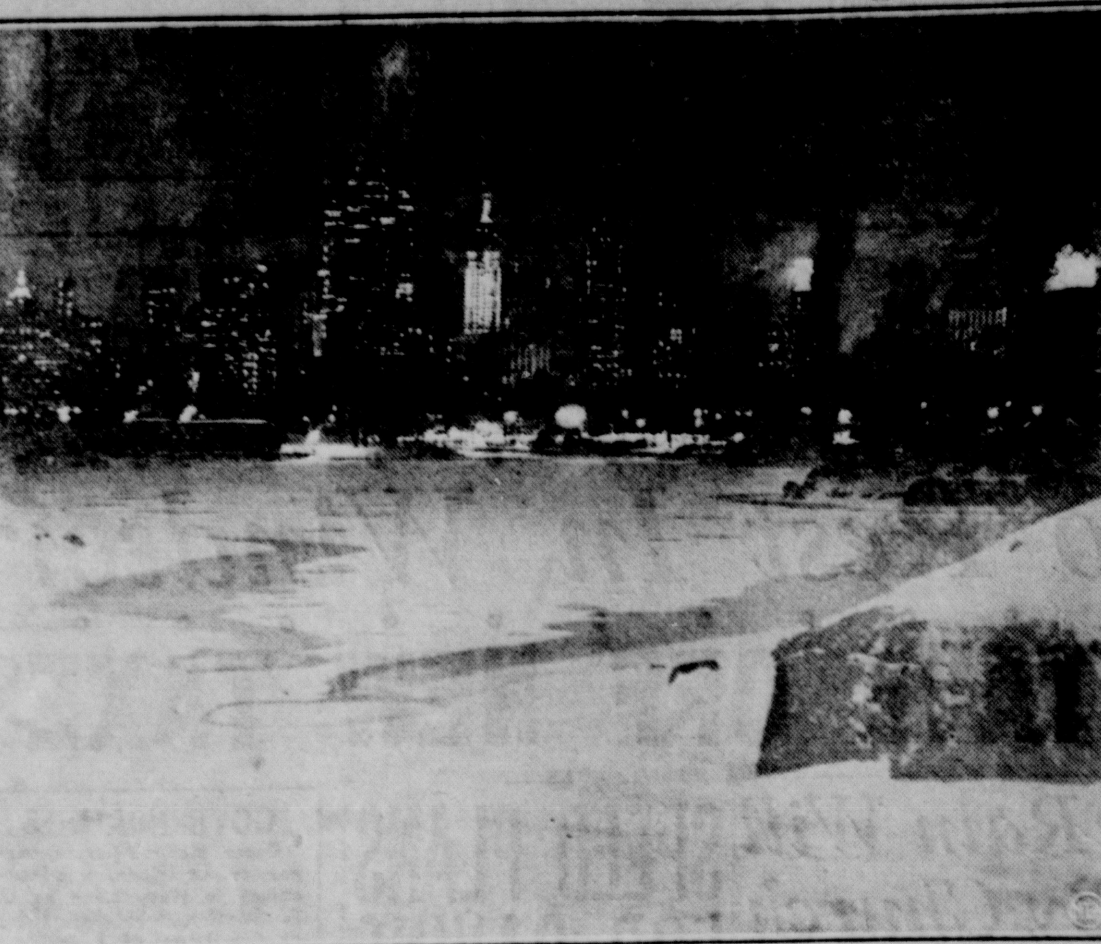

Considerable spade work will have to be done before the Roosevelt opposition can be welded into a unit in Dixie.

"What would be the first thing you would do if you were elected president?" Talmadge was asked.

"I'd tear down some of those buildings up in Washington and make parks on the grounds," he said.

"As long as you got an office building you are always thinking about hiring somebody to put into it. They fill up those offices with a lot of bureaucrats who then come around to tell fellows like me what to do. I stood it for a while, but I got tired of it. I told 'em all to go to hell. They understood that all right."

Record Snow Turns New York Into Gleaming Fairyland

The myriad lights of New York's skyscrapers, reflected by the season's heaviest blanket of snow, routed the night shadows in Central Park with the brilliance of a dozen moons. This was the glittering spectacle spread before the eyes of New Yorkers who looked south toward the business district across the frozen 12nd street lake.

hemorrhage and hemorrhage at the base of the tongue and acute edema of the glottis.

Allen had planned to resign from politics after his term in the senate, which would have ended next January.

Allen is survived by his widow and three children, a girl and two boys. Joyce Love Allen last Sept. 14 married Dr. William Starke, research chemist of Rockefeller Institute, New York. The sons are Oscar K. Allen, Jr. and Asa Benton Allen.

Allen, a former northern Louisiana scout store keeper, was known throughout his term of governor as the "puppet" of Huey Long.

When Long returned to the state he personally sat in the governor's chair and gave orders. On several occasions he is reported to have said:

"Damn it, Oscar, hurry up and do what I say."

Born on Farm

Allen was born on a small farm in Winn parish, in northern Louisiana on Aug. 8, 1882, the son of a Baptist preacher-farmer. He attended school at a Long school house which held sessions for six weeks during the summer time, and when 17 years old, he set out on a teaching career.

In 1911, Allen abandoned teaching and took a job as bookkeeper for a construction contractor. In that same year, he went with the construction company to Paris, Tex., where he met Miss Florence Love, whom he married in 1912.

In 1913 he returned to Winnfield, La., and engaged in the mercantile and real estate business. In 1916 he became a candidate for assessor of Winn parish, and—what is more important—for the first time met Huey P. Long.

Financed Long

All of the work, except the South Main street improvement, will be performed by the city, it was announced.

The gas tax money to be provided represents the allocation made by the 1935 legislature for expenditures within municipalities. The first allocation in 1935 provided the proceeds of one-quarter cent of the gas-tax for the maintenance and improvement of city streets comprising the designated state highway routes.

At the following session in 1935, the legislature allocated an additional one-quarter cent for expenditure upon important arterials within cities. The allocations are made upon a population basis.

didate for the public service commission, Allen gave him money to make the campaign. Long never forgot this favor. In 1924 when Long ran for governor, Allen managed his campaign, and when Long was elected, he was named head of the state highway commission.

In 1922 Long chose Allen his candidate for governor, made all of Allen's speeches and personally drove him forward to election.

At the time Long was shot, Allen announced he would retire from politics after his present term as governor expired. A short time later, however, Allen secretly filed for the senate. That meant he would run against Allen Ellender, whom the machine had chosen as its candidate.

Robert J. Maestri, the party boss settled the dispute by persuading Wade O. Martin to withdraw as candidate for Long's unexpired term, which ends Jan. 1, 1937, and putting Allen on the ticket for the job.

Allen was nominated in the Democratic party primary but was not scheduled to take office until several months later when the second primary is held.

ARMY FLIER KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Second Lieutenant William K. Payne was killed and Second Lieut. Dudley E. Whitten was injured critically today when their army airplane crashed in landing at Bolling field.

The men were flying in a Douglas O-25 observation plane. As the craft swooped down over the army airport to land it plunged to earth.

They were flying to Bolling field from Pope field, North Carolina. Payne was at the controls.

MODELS AT SHOW

Italians here were jubilant over the series of spectacular victories on the southern front. Since Gen. Rodolfo Graziani started his mechanized war machine rolling on Jan. 12 in the major offensive of the war, Italian troops have carried the Roman eagle half way to the Ethiopian capital. The biggest headlines since the beginning of the war acclaimed this achievement.

The southernmost wing of Gen. Graziani's army has captured Uadara, only 75 miles from Aillata and the southern lakes region. Uadara was occupied on Jan. 23 and is 45 miles northwest of Neghell and nearly 250 miles northwest of Dolo, starting point for the drive from Italian Somalia.

Regions Not Defended

Foreign correspondents who have returned here from the southern front say Gen. Graziani could put a mobile army within sight of Addis Ababa within 10 days. The region through which the troops would have to advance is favorable to lightning-fast movements and, as far as is known, is not defended. The terrain would favor the mechanized forces.

Observers doubt, however, that Graziani would make such a maneuver unless the high military command decides on a spectacular offensive against Addis Ababa in an effort to demoralize the northern Ethiopian armies defending the Makale and Harar sections.

Ethiopian efforts to separate the Italian forces around Makale have failed completely after heavy losses. Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the Italian African armies, reported. He emphasized that Italian losses have been fully reported in official bulletins and said Ethiopian casualties on the northern front total 3000 men.

Calculations based on Italian official communiques show that the Ethiopian killed and wounded since the war started total almost 20,000 men, which is approximately 10 times greater than the Italian losses as reported officially.

Remains Seated

Stone, who pleaded guilty after a conference with three court-appointed attorneys, made no move to rise from his slouching position in a chair of the jury box.

Judge Thomson continued: "Elton Stone, you are guilty of murder in the first degree. Careful perusal of the evidence has convinced me that there were no extenuating circumstances that might merit clemency of the court. I order that you be delivered into custody of the warden of Folsom prison and there be executed."

That was practically all, except for the surge of the spectators, eager to obtain a glance at the man who committed one of the most wanton murders in the history of the San Joaquin valley slain belt county.

Crowd Is Silent

Stone, his eyes constantly downcast, was handcuffed to two deputies and hustled through the silent crowd to the sheriff's car waiting to take him to prison.

Once or twice the onlookers pressed too closely.

"Keep back!" the deputies commanded.

The trip here was made swiftly. Stone was dressed in immediately and assigned to his death row cell.

Four other killers will be his neighbors while he awaits a supreme court review of his case.

They are George Hall, Yreka police slayer; Earl Kimball, bushy-haired "werewolf of Folsom Flats," Auburn; John Berreman, Sacramento, and a Negro named James.

Supreme court action in Stone's case is not expected to be more than a routine process of law. Since shortly after a young Negro was hanged while an appeal to the supreme court, delayed in review through a clerical error, was pending, California law has required automatic reviews of the cases of all condemned men.

Therefore, Stone probably will expiate Mary's slaying on the prison gallows here as soon as the court completes its study of his case, officials believed. The review may require from 60 days to six months, it was estimated, with the date of execution scheduled to be set as soon as the court's decision is returned.

BROWNE AVERS HITLER GETTING READY FOR WAR

Hitler is the result of Germany's failure in the World war and another war would result in two Hitlers, Lewis Browne, speaking last night under auspices of the adult education department of the city schools, told his audience at the First Methodist church.
The largest crowd that has ever attended a Browne lecture here filled the church last night. The auditorium was filled to capacity, and the Sunday school room and the Banquet hall in the church basement was filled with the overflow. Browne's talk was carried to these additional rooms by loud speakers.
Browne said that the entire world wronged Germany in the World war and that the nation, today, is beside itself over results of the war. Because of this condition, he said, there will be a new war within a year and possibly in even less time. Germany is doing nothing but prepare for the coming conflict, he averred.

There are three things on which Germany is awaiting before launching the new war, Browne said. First is the need for money, the second is additional treaties with other countries and the third is completion of new equipment. As soon as these three factors are obtained Germany will go to war.
He said that Germany is depending on the Olympic games, this year, to provide considerable of the finances needed by the nation to successfully carry on the war.

With war considered as inevitable Browne said that the entire world will suffer from its effects but that the United States should keep out of the struggle and do nothing to bring about the conflict. "We owe it to ourselves and even to Germany to do nothing to bring about a new war," the speaker said.
Browne outlined the constitution for the democratic form of government which, he charged, the other nations would not allow to function. France, Browne said, did everything possible, through reparations demands, to keep Germany from again becoming an influential nation. Reparations demands blocked every effort of the nation to advance, with the result that the democratic form of government failed. Financial security of the people was wiped out through inflation and the middle class was reduced to the proletariat.

When financial affairs of the nation were finally adjusted, the middle class was left in a terrible condition, he said. There was great unrest in the nation and immortality increased. As a result of these conditions three parties sprung up. They were Social-Democrats, Monarchists and Communists.
Browne said that the German people did not realize that the breaking down of conventions was the aftermath of war and blamed the condition on the liberal government.

Everyone was dissatisfied and there was but one man who knew what to do, Browne said. This man had the power and viewed Germany from an idealistic stand. This man—the son of a German customs officer—was Hitler.
He first tried to lead the people as a working man but refused to join the union and was badly treated. Next he joined the army and won distinction during the war as a fighter. After the war Hitler mingled with the people, listened to orators and, later joined with seven former soldiers, in a society, organized to save Germany.

Never worrying about the truth, leaving no stone unturned that would create a favorable impression, Hitler taught the German people that Germany was betrayed and not defeated in the World war, Browne said. The betrayal was blamed on the Jews by Hitler.
Capitalists of Germany finally came to Hitler's aid and he was elected prime minister. Browne said that many people believe that his party was responsible for the burning of the Reichstag and declare that the arrest of 1600 people on warrants and the closing of all Social-Democrat and Communist newspapers, within two hours of the fire is the best proof of this charge.
Browne said that Hitler's elevation to power, the subsequent blood purge and later events are all preparations for a great war through which Hitler hopes to, some day, rule the world.

PUBLISHER DECLARES BOTH POLITICAL PARTIES TO BLAME FOR ECONOMIC DEPRESSION

That the Republican party has never had a single constructive idea for 45 years and that the Republicans are equally guilty with the Democrats in bringing on the economic depression was the contention of R. C. Hoiles, publisher of The Register, when he spoke to members of a special committee from the Orange County Republican Central committee last night in James' cafe.

The last constructive idea the Republican party had, the speaker declared, was in 1890 when the Sherman Anti-Trust Act was passed. Republicans, he charged, are just as much to blame for the economic mess into which the country has been plunged as the Democrats—if not more so, because the Republicans have been in power longer.

"Both parties," he said, "have seemed to vie with each other as to which could make the biggest and most promises in order to get votes, with no regard for the practicability of these promises. The result has been a lack of constructive ideas from either party and we are reaping what we have sown."

The speaker discussed the necessity and advisability of changing the tax system so that there is more capital competing with other capital, resulting in employment for more persons and raising the real wages of the working people.

Example Cited
Illustrating his point, the speaker pointed out that if 50 cows have to be milked and cared for, for every man that has to work for a living there will be more work to do and the workers would get more milk and cream, whereas if there were 50 men and one cow to be milked, the men would get not only little work, but a small amount of milk and cream.
"The only possible way to improve the condition of the workers," he asserted, "is to have the ratio or amount of capital seeking men to operate their capital, and to have this ratio large as compared with the number of persons who have to work."

"Our government, through our laws, should make it hard, difficult and unpleasant for any human being who does not try to improve the living conditions of us all, tomorrow as well as today. How? Simply by taking away a large part of the fruits, or profits, of wealth when they are not used to increase the future well-being of society, and leaving the fruits, or profits, of capital in the hands of private people who, in the past, have made them grow or increase rapidly and who are still trying to make them increase."

Urges Graduated Tax
"This can be done in a practical way by a graduated tax upward, on consumption; that is, by taxing at a higher rate, the intemperance, unsocial use of wealth. A graduated tax on consumption would encourage the increase of labor-saving machinery, labor-saving vegetation—capital. If this increase in use of labor-saving equipment is the only possible way of improving our living conditions each succeeding year and making this a better world in which to live, why should we tax a man for the rapidity with which he intentionally causes national wealth to be reduced?"

Hoiles pointed out that economy can never be secured until there are direct taxes so that people will know exactly what government is costing them. In the last 22 years, he said, above the expenses of the war, the government now takes between three and four times as much in taxes as it did 22 years ago, due to the belief of people that someone else is paying their taxes and they are not paying taxes.

Questions Submitted
At the meeting last night, four questions were submitted to members of the Republican committee. The questions and the answers in percentages are given below:

1.—If you spend $10,000 upon yourself, should you pay more than 10 times as much tax as if you spend $1,000 upon yourself. That is, should you be taxed on a graduated basis, upward, as you spend at a higher rate for luxuries than for necessities? This question was answered 100 per cent in the affirmative.

2.—If you had a large income obtained from working and producing, should it be taxed so long as you use it to make equipment which will enable everyone to get everything easier and provided your wealth is taxed on a graduated basis, upward, when you do not so use it? This question was answered 96 per cent no and four per cent yes.

3.—Should the rich, who do not risk their wealth in business be taxed on a graduated basis, upward, on income resulting when they lend their money to others who are willing to take risks? This question was answered 96 per cent yes and four per cent no.

4.—Would you like to see some political party adopt these principles in its platform? This question was answered 88 per cent in the affirmative and 12 per cent did not vote on the question.

Quies Great Statement
Declaring that a statement made by former President Coolidge is destined to be recognized as one of the greatest statements a president ever made, Hoiles quoted the statement, which follows, and predicted that it would come true:
"Our danger lies in indirect attacks on our property rights under the guise of taxation. This is rendered possible by constitutional changes already made."

"Many are beginning to wonder if it would not be wise to supplement our system of taxation by providing that a large number of people should pay a small but certain direct tax."

"If it is necessary to meet an emergency, excessive high taxation on a few large incomes might be made temporarily, without great injury."

"But to adopt such a system permanently and, under the pretense of raising revenue, pursue a policy

MCCOY NAMED ASSISTANT AT JUNIOR COLLEGE

Appointment of John McCoy, former newspaperman, and junior instructor at Santa Ana junior college and high school, as assistant director of the junior college, in charge of public relations, was ratified by the board of education last night, on recommendation of City Superintendent Frank A. Henderson.

In his new post, just created, McCoy will be the first "ambassador of good will" from Santa Ana junior college to the territory tributary to the college. A part of his duties will be to keep the general public aware of Santa Ana junior college, what it is achieving, and what it has to offer.

Superintendent Henderson expressed to the board his opinion that McCoy is eminently fitted for the post, and was proposed by Director D. K. Hammond, of the junior college.

McCoy, besides being journalism instructor, also has been boys' counselor at the high school, which post now will be filled by Robert Farrar, instructor of U. S. history and civics. Principal Lynn Crawford recommended Farrar's appointment.

McCoy's appointment covers the summer months, as well as the school year. He will continue to have charge of the journalism classes at junior college, also El Don, the junior college paper; the Generator, high school publication, and the news service.

Farrar, besides continuing his history and civics classes and becoming boys' counselor at the junior college, will have charge of the feeding of prisoners committed by city magistrates.

The cities in question have refused to pay the charges, having discovered that prisoners committed to the county jail for violation of state laws, must be supported by the county.

The charges included $1460 to Newport Beach, $37 to Tustin, and $24.20 to Seal Beach.
The contract of the Macco Construction company at 126.00, for the La Veta avenue storm drain, at El Modena, was approved by the supervisors today.

Plans for a proposed harbor master's building to be located on the Washington pier, in Newport harbor, at a cost of $2100 were laid before the supervisors today by Councilman Irvin George Gordon, of Newport Beach. Supervisor N. E. West was named as

RESIGNATION—

Al's best pal, who lunches with him regularly, wanted to bet last September that President Roosevelt would not be nominated. He does not care to bet now.

This explains, in part at least, the undertone upon which Mr. Smith chose to swing his Liberty League speech. His folks say he has an idea that there is an outside chance of righting the New Dealers into moderating their course. He was pointing his remarks for effect upon a man who lives in the large White House, about five blocks away, more than anyone else.

This explanation would clear the mystery of why he chose to become "the lousy father" so early in the campaign season, before the actual vote war starts. If he had withheld his fall until later, it would have counted more in votes. Now, it may count more in indirect influence.

COVERT RESISTANCE—

In these probable explanations you have a rather complete background of the inside Washington situation today. At this time last year, certain congressmen in Mr. Roosevelt's party were speaking daily against his policies in both houses. Now their tongues are silent. They are resigned to the prospect that the political mechanics of the situation are against them, and each is acting accordingly.

Generally their opposition minds are still working as actively as ever. They are doing as much as they can backstage to change certain legislation and government policy, but not by word of mouth. You can catch a hint of it in what is happening on the new farm program.

The farm bill confusion of congressional leaders during the last few days may have appeared to outsiders to be a little too confusing to be credible. It was.

For days, senate and house leaders have been making contradictory announcements. On the inside, they also have been pulling energetically among themselves over which house should pass the bill first. Each house thinks the other should.

Irrepressible Senator Glass is supposed to be the chief obstacle in the senate. He is offered as the excuse why the house should act first. The fact is he is being secretly abetted by a lot of good party men who do not want to show their hands.

Congressional leaders just do not want to baffle another farm plan without more study and care than they gave the first one. Although they do not want to say so.

EUROPE—

The confidential report which Undersecretary Phillips brought back from Europe will never leak out in detail. The reason is that it takes a more serious view of European war prospects than the top diplomats here have generally held.

It is understood among the well informed that Mr. Phillips has told Mr. Roosevelt that the danger of conflict between Britain and Italy is much greater than one would gather from current published dispatches.

Face-saving is going to be deeply difficult, but not impossible. Note—Mr. Phillips also discovered in Berlin that the Hitlerites are concerned over the unfavorable press reaction they are continuing to get in this country.

NO SALE—

A number of minor Republican trainers from the hinterlands brought in their "dark horses" for the Liberty League dinner. Conversational heats were run at most of the parties upstairs. Likewise the lobbies of certain hotels occasionally resembled horse-sales.

No buying was reported. Probably none was expected. Trainers of dark horses are usually satisfied merely to have their horses mentioned this early in the race.

NOTES—

The budget caused little interest when it was originally submitted (January 6), but is arousing plenty now. Certain prominent New Deal fiscal authorities are privately encouraging the hubbub, particularly the current thought of immediate new taxes. That is a trial balloon.

Mr. Roosevelt mentioned the 1922 case of Bailey vs. George when he commented critically on the supreme court decision in the rice millers' case. Private lawyers here have dug up the Wallace decision, made by the court the very same day in 1922, contending it proves Mr. Roosevelt was wrong. No one can decide that except the supreme court, and it already has.

There is some American Legion talk about backing Congressman Vinton of Kentucky for the senate next year, which indicates rewards available to legislators who support the bonus.

The New Deal neutrality bill is worrying a number of congressmen with large Italian-American populations in their districts. They do not know what to do.

The theatrical trade magazine, Variety, lists the Republican radio skit, "Liberty at the Crossroads," as "second rate entertainment."

SPEED

AAA-ers have quietly revised their first forecasts that the AAA's momentum would maintain farm prices for two or three years. Unless a substitute can be produced and put into operation quickly, economic and political reverses may darken agricultural areas before the November harvest of votes.

On October 16—crop-reporting day—sellers and purchasers of major farm commodities will have a preliminary picture of late 1935 and 1937 production prospects. They will know whether excessive, uncontrolled planting of wheat, cotton and tobacco threatens a sharp drop in prices for crops on their way to market. By then the farmer can make up his mind whether his salvation lies with FDR or his GOP opponent.

Prices may influence him more than platforms. This danger explains the demand for speed in passing the soil conservation program. It will take months to apply this new yardstick of production to the various crops and various sections of the country. Economically and politically, there is no time to be lost on Capitol Hill.

MILESTONE

Railroad labor is preparing to desert its ancient champion—"Joe" Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission. It probably will not lift a finger to prolong his office as railroad czar when the emergency transportation act expires on June 16.

"Joe" has antagonized the rail unions with his insistence on car poolings and consolidations which tend to throw them out of work. Their chief interest in the emergency legislation lies in the provision guaranteeing the same volume of employment that prevailed in June of 1933. Recently their representatives met secretly at Chicago with spokesmen for the railroads. If they can eliminate differences, the two groups will negotiate an agreement giving each side the benefits it enjoys under the Eastman act. Then they would not need "Joe" to boss them.

The Chicago conference may mark an important milestone in railroad history. It was initiated by the labor groups. It could lead to a compromise between the principals in the long struggle that would lessen the need for further regulation and interference by Uncle Sam—as the NRA tried to do for industry.

KINDNESS

Eastern GOP-ers are framing a scheme to extract the sting from the Borah-for-President movement in their states. National Republican politicians have been impressed by its simplicity and may resort to it in other sections where the Idaho Progressive menaces Old Guard control.

Mr. Borah commands supporters in numerous eastern states—New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, etc. His benches threatened to run in the presidential primaries as Borah delegates. Because of the Senator's popular appeal those who wear his colors might poll large votes and disrupt the old-line strategists' plans.

The new stunt is not to oppose these isolated and numerically unimportant Borah contestants. Let them go to the convention pledged to Borah and thereby avoid a primary row at home. This idea is grounded on the conviction that the Senator will withdraw from the race at the last moment, leaving his followers no place to go except with their state delegations when the voting becomes serious. In other words, kill off the Borah threat with kindness.

WORDS

Although New Dealers profess to welcome Herbert Hoover as a presidential challenge, they wince under his attacks. They check his utterances with a microscope to discover flaws and mistakes they can magnify.

Mr. Hoover's farm address is their latest headache. But they think they have caught him with his ver-

IT'S A FINE MACHINE BUT SOMETHING'S WRONG. MY CLOTHES LOOK DINGY!

Somebody ought to tell her about Rinso

FLAT SUDS—lifeless suds—means dingy, half-white washes. Change to Rinso's lively suds and see the difference! Clothes come so much whiter, colors come gay as new. No wonder makers of 33 famous washers recommend Rinso! It's marvelous for TUB WASHING, too; soaks out dirt—saves scrubbing—clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. Grand for dishwashing, saves the hands. Get the BIG package.

bal guard down, in his Lincoln speech the former President declared that FDR had predicted an "immediate" fall in farm prices if AAA control were abandoned. The Palo Alto man quoted Mr. Roosevelt as saying that cotton would drop to five cents a pound and wheat to 38 cents a bushel. The prediction was supposed to have been uttered on May 10 of last year.

The sleuths say that Mr. Roosevelt made no agricultural statement on that date. After the NRA decision he did suggest that such prices would prevail without production control, but he did not use the word "immediately"; he said "inevitably." The squabble is a sign that presidential combatants must choose their words carefully.

ALIBI

The two Senators from Virginia—Carter Glass and Harry Byrd—have a private contest and only the supreme court can settle it.

Both statesmen have little use for the new deal, though they like FDR personally. But each supported one piece of Rooseveltian legislation. Mr. Byrd voted for the AAA—he is a farmer—and Mr. Glass voted for TVA. As a reporter, city clerk and state legislator, his experiences convinced him that the utilities treated the consumer unfairly.

Mr. Glass had the laugh on his colleague when the court threw out the AAA. Now the senior senator is wondering whether the tables won't be turned when the court passes on TVA. But Mr. Glass has an alibi. He could explain that he voted for the various other phases of the Tennessee experiment—flood control, navigation, soil erosion—and not for the large-scale sale of power. "I don't think they were going as far as they have," he growls as he awaits the condemnation or vindication of the court.

INVITATION

Some Washingtonians who met Edward VIII on his last visit to the capital find it difficult to picture him in the role of "king and emperor." They remember most vividly his playful moments.

During that trip he dropped into the National Press club. It was in prohibition times and in preparation a prominent New Yorker who had bought the late Nat Goodwin's cellar sent several cases of extra-fine Scotch to the club. The prince arrived after spending several hours with dignitaries who had offered him nothing stronger than water. He was fagged and thirsty.

At the club several elderly members engaged him in a discussion of economic and world problems. But the club steward knew something about entertaining royalty. Nudging the noble guest in the ribs, he interrupted with the question: "Hey, Prince, how would you like some Scotch and soda?"

Wailes grinned and replied: "As you say in the United States, please lead me to it."

NOTES

Emil Hurja, the Democrats' political scientist, has returned to his desk after a trip around the world. His first assignment will be to test FDR's strength by his famous sampling method. . . . Archivists are having trouble in persuading cabinet members to part with historic documents for new cold-storage, fire-proof buildings. . . . Democratic sleuths are checking the names of Liberty league directors—to see if any have borrowed funds from the RFC. . . . Democrats are framing Simeon Fess' prediction that FDR will win next fall. . . . And Chairman Fletcher is scowling.

Great Salt Lake was created by settling of the earth's crust. Although it covers 2000 square miles, it has an average depth of about 12 feet.

EXPECT FINE ARTS PRESS TO CONTINUE WORK

That friction between local commercial printers and the Fine Arts Press of Santa Ana Junior college has been ironed out, through agreement reached by a committee representing school officials and printers, was indicated in a report of the committee laid before the board of education last night.

Authorized at the last meeting of the board two weeks ago, the committee, which includes A. G. Flagg, head of the printers' organization, worked out a plan whereby the Fine Arts press would not engage in printing for local individuals or organizations. If such printing could be satisfactorily handled by commercial printers. The school press will limit itself to artistic, scientific, historic or research material. It was stated.

All projects submitted to Fine Arts Press will be approved by the committee before being accepted for printing. It was agreed.

The solution reached by the committee, it was felt, would not impair the activities of Fine Arts Press in the field where it has won national recognition for itself and the school.

Thomas E. Williams, of the Junior College faculty, in charge of the print shop, attended the committee meeting at which the agreement was reached. Fine Arts Press has been under his direction.

The supervising committee consists of: Ridley Smith, of the school board, as chairman; Dr. Margaret Baker, board member; City Superintendent Frank A. Henderson; Director D. K. Hammond of the Junior College; and A. G. Flagg.

UNREST AND DISSATISFACTION IN COUNTRIES OF FAR EAST NOTED BY S. A. TRAVELERS

(Editor's Note—This is another in a series of articles being written especially for The Register by Ted Jackman, former Santa Ana man, now on the way to Palestine. This article was written while in the Gulf of Aden.)

By TED JACKMAN

The thing that has impressed me more than anything else as we have traveled from country to country is the general unrest and dissatisfaction. It seemingly makes no difference how civilized or backward the people may be, they are all alike in this regard.

There is no government that has observed that it is at all safe from either revolution or fear of attack from the outside. We have just left India and the people there are wanting to throw off the British rule. They of course lack unity and a leader strong enough for this purpose. Mr. Gandhi has done more for the British than they possibly realize. If it had not been for his non-aggressive program there undoubtedly would have been a bloody revolution within the last decade.

Gandhi Worshipped

The Indian people think a great deal of Gandhi. In fact many consider that God has come to them in his form and so worship him. There can be no question but that he is a wonderful man with a great heart filled with love and pity for the millions of the depressed classes of India. I also believe that his program to increase hand labor and do away with the machine for manufacture is correct. One must see the millions of poverty-stricken unemployed to appreciate this fact and also understand that the Indian people are very patient and that the time element means nothing to them. The paper on which I am writing is made entirely by hand from bamboo in one of Gandhi's schools.

Mr. Kipling was certainly not far wrong when he said: "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet." After having crossed the Indian peninsula twice and from Delhi in the north to the southernmost tip, I can't for the life of me see how this people can be changed within at least another century. One of the outstanding reasons for the impossibility of change and genius improvement is the curse of their religion. Religion has done more to blight their lives and warp their thinking and hinder their progress than any other one element.

When I say that religion is a curse to them I mean exactly that. It matters not where you find them or how abominably filthy and corrupt they may be, they will make a great show of their prayers. This also serves to bring home the truth that though man is naturally religious, religion in itself is not sufficient. Whether that religion be the kind we have in the United States or the kind we have out here.

Superficial Prayer

I was reminded a great deal of some folks' religion in the States when I would hear them pray so you could hear them a block away and then when they got up from their knees they were just as full of the devil as ever.

There is only one answer for all this that is going to satisfy man's natural desire toward religion, that is going to elevate, civilize and bless him and give him real joy and that is to experience Christ, not only at conversion, but every day of his life. It is not religion, but the religious experiences of Christian conversion and conduct that makes the gospel of Christ supersede all others and makes the Christian nations greater than the heathen.

It will not be long now until we are at Aden, Arabia, then for 1200 miles through the Red Sea, then the Suez Canal and finally Palestine, where we will be busy doing our work.

COUNCIL NOTES

Official approval for the placing of a 4 by 6 foot neon clock on the J. C. Horton Furniture company building, 517 North Main street, was given by city council last night upon recommendation of Electrical Inspector W. O. Packard.

M. E. Jensen's request for permission to establish a bowling alley in the basement of the Pacific building, Third and Broadway, was granted by the council last night upon recommendation of Police Commissioner Plumlee Burns and Chief of Police Floyd W. Howard.

Upon recommendation of Police Commissioner Burns and Chief Howard, W. C. Osborne was granted permission by the council to establish a one-table pool room at 202 East Fourth street.

City Clerk Ed Vegely returned to his accustomed place on the council rostrum last night, following return from a 10-day vacation trip to Tucson, Ariz.

Request of Walter M. Tipple, chiropractor, for rezoning of property at 109 East Seventh street, so that he might establish his office there, was rejected, but city council granted him temporary permit so that he might proceed with his plans. The rezoning request was rejected upon recommendation of the planning commission which disapproved rezoning of the location at this time.

City Auditor Lloyd Banks reported to city council last night that cost of lighting and heating the new city hall during January was less than the original estimate. The January estimate, he said, was use of 26,750 kilowatt hours of electricity for $412, but actual use, plus an estimated use for the last few days of the month, was $19,482 kilowatt hours for $323. The average daily kilowatt hour usage has dropped from 807 during the first 18 days of the city hall's use to 559 during the past week.

Mayor Fred C. Rowland announced at city council meeting last night that the option or purchase of the Tieda property at Washington avenue and Flower street as a proposed park site for $28,500 has been extended to February 5.

Application of George Williams, requesting permission to move his radio repair and sales equipment shop from 834 West First to a residence at 422 South Flower, has been withdrawn, the city planning commission informed city council last night.

DISCUSS PLANS TO STRENGTHEN EDISON SCHOOL

Close inspection of the Edison school, auditorium's foundation, and the structure of its walls and framework, reveal that previous impressions of its weakness were largely in error, and complete safety can be assured by certain measures which were laid before the board last night, according to statements to the board by Jules Markel, local contractor, and Architect Allison, of Los Angeles, who prepared original plans for the building.

The board thereupon discussed without taking definite action, a proposal to undertake measures outlined by Markel, to brace the framework and walls of the building. The work, it was estimated, could be done for less than $4000, and therefore would not be subject to state building code requirements. Markel expressed the view that the tile roof, weighing 17 tons, could be salvaged and sold for enough funds to pay for a light, composition roof in its place.

Architect Allison declared that it would not be even necessary to remove the tile roof, which has caused considerable uneasiness to parents of Edison pupils. The 17-ton weight, said the architect, is negligible considering the present support to the roof, and, if the proposed bracing is done, would not create a hazard.

Secretary George Newcom of the board, related his investigation of the foundations, which he said went five feet deep and have a 45-inch footing.

Architect F. H. Eley, of Santa Ana, was instructed by the board last night to prepare plans for new Edison class rooms.

Tustin Students To Give Operetta

TUSTIN, Jan. 28.—The date for the operetta, "Chonita," to be presented by Tustin Union High school, has been set for 8 p. m. March 27, Miss Madge Stephens, director, announced today.

Copies of the operetta are expected to arrive this week and the work will start immediately. Marian Baxter is in charge of the costumes and her assistant is Alma Williams.

City Grants Permit For Apartments

With not one protest registered against the project at the hearing scheduled before city council last night, the council granted permission to the Santa Ana Realty corporation for immediate construction of two eight-family "twin" apartment houses, five one-car garages and two single apartments over garages on Tenth street, 200 feet west of Broadway.

The planning commission previously approved the project. The location, a 109x160-foot lot on the north side of Tenth, will be changed from single residence to apartment house zone.

The apartments will be constructed, John D. Kelly, manager of the Santa Ana Realty corporation, told the councilmen, "immediately upon getting financial arrangements completed." The apartment buildings will be 32x44 feet, with six-foot setbacks on the east and west property lines, Kelly said.

DOTS AND DASHES AND ONE OR TWO FLASHES

"Better take an automobile," advised the wise L. A. handicapper in placing Coramine dead-last in the first race at Santa Anita yesterday. So Coramine came down in front and paid $143.50 for every $2 risked on his chances. Reason: Coramine was riced up in blinkers, and for the first time his rider was permitted to brandish the switch.

Main-eventer if he registers next semester at Santa Ana Junior college would be blond Art Strancke, one-time "strong boy" of the Santa Ana Saints, now at the University of Southern California.

Strancke went to seed on the Trojan bench last autumn and is considering transferring either to the Dons or to Citrus Jaycees.

He would be an eye-filling addition to Coach Bill Cook's football squad. Strancke was a 190-pound ball of fire in high school and a freshman line-cracker de luxe at S. C. His weight-casting capabilities also would come in handy here. He was around 51 feet with the 12-pound shot as a Saint and was throwing better than 125 in the discus.

The Green Bay Packers split $275 each from the professional football game with the Detroit Lions at Gilmore stadium Sunday. What the Lions got is problematical since their seasonal contracts extend through the trip to California and Hawaii.

Irvine's softball team is going to move bag and baggage from the little bean-growing center up to Eddie Martin's airport at the foot of South Main street here. Plans already have been approved for the transfer of the lighting system. Irvine is a member of the Orange County Night League, but his appearance at the arena of Santa Ana may produce unexpected competition for Santa Ana's Stars this summer.

SAILFISH GAMIEST IN FLORIDA

He Hits Bait With His Sword Like An Express Train

SOUTH ATLANTIC 'DERBY' OPENS

BY HENRY M'LEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23.—His six-foot belly is solid silver, and his sides are daubed with a Maxfield pariah blue.

He's as stream-lined as a racing plane, and on his back is a monster sail, set as proudly as those of an America's Cup sloop.

In front of him, to cut the water, he carries a bone sword, and inside of him he carries the stoutest fighting heart of anything that swims.

He comes up to your bait, skipping on the water, like an express train, and whacks it once with his sword for the kill. A few seconds later he grabs the bait in his bony mouth and, cutting the aquamarine waters of the gulf stream at better than 60 miles an hour, he heads for the open seas.

As he runs you count:
One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten!

With the call of ten you brace your feet on the railing in front of the swivel chair that holds you on the stern of a cruiser, and rear back. If you're lucky your wicked 9-6 hook whips into his mouth, and sticks.

Your reel bends double and your reel sings a song as your line runs out.

You've got a sailfish. You've got the smartest, fastest, gamiest, jumpiest and prettiest fish in the South Atlantic.

Tomorrow, not long after dawn, 53 boats—the silver sailfish fleet—will churn out of Lake Worth, move into the inlet, and on to the gulf stream, to open the annual West Palm Beach silver sailfish derby.

The 100 flags did not represent 100 fish killed, for these sportsmen of the rod and reel do not kill a fish unless the captains, whose expert eyes can estimate a sail's length within an inch and weight within a pound, think he's a possible grand prize winner. Ordinarily, any sail under eight feet in length is brought to the gunwale and grabbed by the back by the captain to comply with the rules, and then released.

Unlike huntsmen, fishermen seem to believe there is no use destroying what you don't want. The fisherman simply borrows a half hour or so of a gallant fisher's time. After all, he may want to borrow it again next week.

Many professionals have discounted Little's ability since his victories have been confined to match play tournaments, which they do not regard as being as exacting as medal play competition.

Little was said to have indicated he will not defend his British Amateur title in 1936 because of the financial outlay involved.

Rudy Montgomery, associated with the Brea team since its organization, and "Silent Al" Colman, a new member, will alternate in the pitcher's box, but the manager also promises some strengthening of the batting power and declares that the club will be better in every detail than last year.

Santa Monica Signs Youel

FORMER SAINT CENTER GIVEN JAYSEE POST

Santa Ana today sent another coach into the big-time, further establishing itself as a fertile football field.

Curtis Youel, Saint center in 1928 and 1929 and later an outstanding snapper-back for the Southern California Trojans, was appointed head coach at Santa Monica junior college.

The appointment was officially announced by Percy Davis, superintendent of schools, who held the same position here before moving to Santa Monica.

Youel, a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Youel, the former a member of the city board of education, has been an assistant coach at Inglewood high school. He succeeds James Coffmann at Santa Monica, Coffmann will be head of the physical education department.

At Santa Ana high school, Coach Youel was a teammate of such players as Al Reboin, Jim Musick, Reg Rust, Bruce Tarver, Harold Pangle, Norman Paul and Melvin Beatty, all of whom later made reputations at major college colleges. At S. C., Curt understudied Stan Williamson one season but was a regular for two years. He starred in the Trojan-Pitt Rose Bowl conflict of 1933.

Among the ex-Santa Anans now widely known in the football coaching profession are "Jeff" Cravath of U. S. C., "Shorty" Smith of Boca-Ron, Bill Cole of Tustin, John Ward of Garden Grove, Al Clays of Citrus, Harold Youngman of Monterey, Ed Covington of Calhico, John Spangler of Franklin, Ted Coffman of Fremont, Newt Stark of Pasadena, Muir Tech, Charles Beatty of Oceanside, Carlsbad, Ed Adams of Corvallis, Ore, and Al Reboin of Santa Ana Jaycees.

It was said here that Little will check out of Stanford university with his course unfinished because he feels he has obtained "all the good he can get out of college," go to Chicago where he is to be married Feb. 3, then establish his home, probably in Florida.

Little's golfing plans were said to include participation in the American Open this summer, when he hopes to prove to skeptics that he is one of the world's greatest golfers, if not the best. ## S. C. COACH SAYS LUISETTI, CARD ACE, FOULED TROJANS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—Coach Justin (Sam) Barry of University of Southern California today charged that poor officiating was responsible for Hank Luisetti, Stanford forward, scoring 30 points against the Trojans last Saturday in a conference basketball game at Stanford.

"With respectable officiating," sputtered Barry, "Luisetti never would have been able to go on that rampage, and I don't mind being quoted."

The Trojan basketball coach contended that Luisetti was using foul tactics in the second half of the game Saturday and that officials failed to notice his illegal charge.

"Eddie Oram was doing his best to guard Luisetti legally, but Luisetti would give Eddie a shove with his shoulder and then loop the ball into the basket with an overhead sweep."

"Eddie couldn't cope with the situation for fear he'd be called for blocking and Luisetti scored 10 field goals in the second half. You can bet he won't get away with anything like that when Stanford comes down here. . . we'll have some decent officiating."

Barry then went on to pay tribute to the Stanford team as one of the best turned out at Palo Alto in many years.

"Don't get the idea I'm discrediting that lad Luisetti," Barry said. "He's the finest player I've ever seen from a bay region school."

For the third successive year, Santa Ana and Phoenix, Ariz., juniors colleges continue basketball relations here tonight when Coach George Hoy's barnstorming Arizona mix it up with the Dons on the high school gym floor at 8 o'clock.

It has been a practice of the Phoenix cagers to stage an extended tour through Southern California every January. During their stay in the Southland the Bears meet the outstanding cag teams of the Jaycee and smaller college class. In the two times the Arizona team have performed in Santa Ana they have been repulsed by the Dons. Two years ago Santa Ana turned back the visitors 24-23, and last season annihilated them 42-26, so Coach Hoy is gunning for revenge.

As this contest is near the beginning of the tour, the comparative strength of the Dons and Bears cannot be figured. However, the transient hoopers have an impressive record in their own state having ousted off the freshmen units of Tempe and Flagstaff Teachers 48-29 and 42-36.

Coach Al Reboin intends to experiment a bit, Kenny Nissley, petite forward who ran up 14 points against the Shell Oilers, will get the call at one forward in place of Tom Lacy. Lacy is not playing the brand of ball that elevated him to all-conference honors last season and Reboin is not quite satisfied with his work. Teaming with Nissley is Bob Browning. The elongated ex-Saint is too good a man to be left warming the bench and his added height should work well with Center Fred Erdhaus.

Len Lockhart, backbone of the Don defense and leading basketmaker, is a sure starter at guard. Reboin may replace Johnny Henry with Lacy for a while at the other guard post. Lacy was an all Coast league guard while in Santa Ana high.

Clarence ("Tay") Riggs, Harry Stanley, and John Jennison are certain of seeing early action. Coach Hoy's Bears have as a nucleus two veteran guards in "Big Bill" Allen, who towers six-foot-three and performed at center last year, and Harvey Bolin, a forward member of the Arizona quintet that came here two years ago. At center is Leslie Iiams while the forward berths are filled by Cox and Austerman.

Clois Key In Lineup Against Don Ruggers

Clois Key, the burly U. C. L. A. fullback who masqueraded under the name of his brother Ted until they caught up with him in the middle of the 1935 football season, will be in the lineup of the Santa Monica Athletic club Friday night when the Santa Monica rugby team meets Santa Ana Junior college at the Municipal Bowl.

Key, who also played with the Bruin ruggers when he was at Westwood, will start at left breakaway for the Santa Monicans, according to Manager Don Melsaac.

Santa Monica had one of the strongest lineups in Southern California last year, winning 11 out of 12 games and tying the other, a struggle with the Pasadena A. C. which Santa Ana held 8-0 in the Dons' debut last week.

This year, the Santa Monicans are as good as even. Unbeaten to date, they have reached the final round of the Merivale Cup series after trouncing Pasadena's Majors, Echo Park and Hollywood. They'll take on the U. C. L. A. varsity Saturday afternoon, the day after battling Coach Al Reboin's inexperienced clan here.

Supreme confidence in a horse that had created hardly a ripple in the 2-year-old pool of 1935 brought Eddie Litzberger a brilliant victory in the Juvenile Stakes at Belmont Park last May, and made that horse, Maeriel, king for a day.

Before his victory in the 59th running of the Juvenile Stakes, Maeriel had made no mark in turfdom other than a triumph in the mud, and a victory in the Bouquet Claiming Stakes at Belmont previous to the 2-year-old classic. It was the Bouquet victory that gave Jockey Litzberger his confidence in the horse.

Maeriel began his career in Florida, with Litzberger on his back. Though a favorite, he was badly beaten, racing in green fashion. He was out of the money in his first four races, and then was second in a $2000 claiming event after the place horse had been disqualified.

From Florida, the horse was taken north, and did little better. After finishing fifth to White Cockade in a maiden event, he was third to Flavor and Hollywood, and then won a seven-length victory in the mud. He followed with his Bouquet achievement, which he won with a claiming price tag of $6000 on his saddle.

And so he faced the barrier at Belmont, the traditional spot where great stables bring out their top youngsters. In the main, mediocre juveniles are raced in Florida, and since Maeriel had been unsuccessful there, it was small wonder that New York fans paid him little attention.

Litzberger has proved, through a long apprenticeship, that he had a head on his shoulders. He began his riding in the bush leagues, and had two years of it there and in Canada. Then he went to Miami.

He was a sensation in Florida, leading the lists, and his contract was bought by the Maemere Farm Stable. The owners had as much confidence in giving him Maeriel to ride in the Juvenile as Eddie had in the horse.

In the Juvenile Stakes were Postage Due, White Cockade, Coldstream and several others. Postage Due had been little short of a sensation in Maryland and had been characterized by even

DAVISCOURT'S 'CHOKE HOLD' ENDS FREEMAN

By PAUL VISSMAN

"Dirty Dick" Daviscourt choked his way to a two-fall victory over Herb Freeman in a scheduled three-fall wrestling match at the Orange County Athletic club last night.

Fans who filled the place anticipating another near-riot, such as marked the match last week between Daviscourt and Sandor Szabo, were disappointed. Daviscourt was just as violent as ever but Freeman's Jewish prudence prevented any real trouble.

After the first fall referee "Bull" Montana punched Daviscourt in the jaw, ending a heated argument over "Dirty Dick's" tactics, but Daviscourt was tired and went over to his corner.

Freeman Changes Mind

When Daviscourt took the second fall from Freeman, the Jewish boy from New York, after he regained his feet, started across the ring as though he intended to punch the former California champion. The crowd, which had started for the exit, stopped to see the fun but was disappointed when Freeman put on the brakes a few feet from Daviscourt.

Daviscourt took the first fall in 13:08 with a body slam after choking and slamming Freeman around the ring in one of the best pool hall fights that has been presented on a wrestling card for many months. He took the second fall in 5:08 with a stranglehold.

The real action was packed in to the semi-windup with Sandor Szabo and Bill Sledge wrestling to a draw. The men were evenly matched, both as to strength and skill, and gave a nice show.

Sledge Out on Feet

At one time Sledge appeared to be out on his feet after a series of body slams. He recovered and clamped a toe hold on Szabo that punished the Hungarian considerably. Pulling out of the toe-hold, Szabo punished Sledge for several minutes with the famous Indian Death tie but could not hold it and Sledge worked out to fasten the toe-hold on Szabo again. Aside from the Indian Death tie Szabo's best hold was an arm lock.

Always the colorful performer, Milo Steinborn, fooled with "Gentleman" Joe Vargas for 15:06 before winning the scheduled one fall match with a body press. Vargas started out like a whirlwind but ended up just a gentle breeze after Steinborn got into the spirit of the game and really started to play.

Charley Santon and Tony Rocco, a couple of cream puffs, roared around on the floor for 25:46 before Santon won with an accidental body pass. Rocco tried a trick that didn't work, fell on his back and pulled Santon over on top of him.

Saints Use Four Lineups Against San Bernardino

Santa Ana High school's basketball team travels to San Bernardino tomorrow afternoon for a practice tilt scheduled for 3:15 before encountering the San Diego Hilltoppers here Friday night in the last Coast league game.

Coach Reece Greene said four different combinations will see action at San Bernardino, regardless of the score.

Greene will start Erwin Youel, Merle Morris, forwards; Ed Eastham, center; Sam Lockhart, Bill Flood, guards; Jim O'Connell and Larry Tway, forwards; Milton Smith, center; Bill Milligan and Billy Musick, will play the second quarter. In the third quarter Bill Semmacher and Bob Clark will be forwards; Byron Burnette, center; Harold Eastham and Ernest Price, guards. The combination that shows most will play the last period.

Coach Greene revealed that the starting five at San Bernardino probably will get the call against San Diego. With Ed Eastham back in the fold the Saints are somewhat optimistic about their chances against the Grey Castle five.

Garlock, Ex-Jaycee Athlete, Improved

Wayne Garlock, Santa Ana Junior college's star quarterback of 1929 and sponsor of a Commercial league basketball team here, was back at his Los Angeles home, 3531 Percy street, again today after a two-week illness with appendicitis at Methodist hospital, Los Angeles. An appendectomy was performed and Garlock is improving rapidly.

Garlock, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Garlock, 602 East Chestnut avenue, and Miss Frances Birchler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justus Birchler, 424 E. Myrtle, were married here last June. Garlock is an office employee with the Keystone Transfer and Express company, Los Angeles.

BLESSED EVENT?

Reports that Mrs. Joe Louis, below, soon will become a mother were circulated today with the announcements that Louis had cancelled a vacation trip to Honolulu.

"Louis' physicians advised against an ocean trip for Mrs. Louis," John Roxborough, the fighter's manager, said, "so a vacation at Hot Springs, Ark., has been substituted."

This will be "Athletic Night" at the Santa Ana Elks club. After a short lodge session, the B. P. O. E. will turn over its regular meeting to celebrities from the world of sport. Since this is Olympic Year, the "motif" will be track but stars of all kinds will be honored as well.

Exalted Ruler Donald Jerome will be in charge. A committee headed by Ralph (Bill) Cole rounded up the athletes.

Dean Cromwell, coach of the National champion Southern California Trojans, and Willis O. (Bill) Hunter, director of athletics at S. C. as well as chairman of the District Olympic Basketball Committee, will be the principal speakers.

Cromwell will be accompanied here by Sprinter Foy Draper and long-thrower Ken Carpenter and perhaps several other Trojans who shape up as material for Uncle Sam's Olympic lineup.

Baseball will be represented by "Arky" Vaughan of the Pittsburgh Pirates, ablest batsman in either major league last year.

Howard Jones, coach, and Gil Kuhn, captain, of the Trojan football team have been invited. Bill Spaulding of the co-champion U. C. L. A. Bruins and Tom Lieb of Loyola will be here too, along with their captain, George Dickerson and Dave Maxwell, the latter a former Santa Ana Jaycee star.

Jim Musick, of the Boston professional team, has lined up a number of stars of the Green Bay Packers and the Detroit Lions but isn't sure just which players will be able to accept the bid.

Justin (Sam) Barry, Trojan basketball coach, and "Dutch" Wilcox, another S. C. official, are due. Musical entertainers will be here from U. S. C. and Coach John Ward's champion jiu-jitsu wrestlers have promised to put on a brief exhibition.

Guests at tonight's show will be Elks and their guests, including athletes from every high school in the country.

LE MON TO COLLINS: 'GET A REPUTATION'

Passing off Ernie Collins' challenge for a return match Friday night with "tell the Indian to get a reputation," Bob Singleton, Lupo LeMon's handler, informed Promoter Sam Sampson of the Orange County Athletic club today that LeMon planned to rest this week but would be ready for action the week following.

According to Singleton, LeMon scored decisively over Collins last week and he sees no reason why Lupo should again meet the Sherman Indian light-heavy.

As a result, Promoter Sampson signed Hub Powell, Los Angeles Negro who fought LeMon a furious battle two weeks ago, to meet Collins.

Singleton, however, agreed to let his young charge Ken Holiday, welter, box the rugged "Wild Bill" Buffalo on the coming eight-bout bill.

Local lads signed to appear are: Jimmy Merced, Al Forrest, Danny Moreno, Don Benzer, Henry Watenburg of San Juan Capistrano and Al Garcia.

LEE RAMAGE WILL ATTEMPT COMEBACK

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 23.—Hopes of another crack at Joe Louis, whose thundering fists sent him into retirement a year ago, today led Lee Ramage to announce plans for a comeback.

Ramage, who lasted eight rounds in one of his bouts with the Brown Bomber from Detroit, said he was out for another attempt to defeat Louis or even Champion Jimmy Braddock.

ARCADIA, Jan. 23.—Coramine, a "sleeper" entry in a three furlong maiden race at Santa Anita track yesterday, proved she was wide awake by nosing out the favorite, named Not Asleep, and paying $142.60 on $2 win tickets.

The payoff was the highest in the history of Santa Anita track and came on a day when only one favorite won as predicted by handicappers. Jockey Stalling, up on Coramine, slipped past Not Asleep, while his jockey apparently was asleep, and edged home a winner for her owner, Mrs. C. H. Howard.

Writing To Sell

By Ethel K. Lockwood

The Juvenile Field

A great many beginning writers who are struggling to make the grade in the adult magazines could sell readily to the juveniles if they cared to. The line between the two fields is not as clearly drawn as one might imagine. Even among the church publications the ray has gone when the sugary, moral-saturated story will sell.

"Don't preach!" say the editors of the religious publications. "Ask them for their requirements and they will say: Clean adventure, life as the average boy and girl see it. Sports of all kinds are popular."

Good Start Needed

Here as in the adult magazines, a quick, attractive, compelling start is necessary. When you remember the average youngster of today has access to the radio with its often "too lurid" tales; moving pictures, and newspaper headlines, you realize a slow-starting story isn't going to get any farther with "sonny" than it would with "father."

Librarians tell us that the average child does not like the "T" stories. They say: "This story can't be so much. The fellow who wrote it lived to tell about it."

There are excellent first-person stories on the library shelves, and children do read them, but the person who hopes to crash this field with the least possible effort, would do well to remember that the "T" stories are not as popular as the rest.

ROMANTIC LOVE STORY AND THRILL FILM AT WALKER'S

Authentic Backgrounds
Backgrounds must be authentic. Here, again, moving pictures have brought realism to our front doors, and the youngsters can't be kidded. "Huh!—that guy's never been there!" is an indictment strong enough to kill a short story or hook in any group of juvenile readers.

If the beginner wishes to write about far-away places that he has never visited, he should make a careful study of the spot through books and magazines, and word of mouth if possible. Research is a safe, effective way to get local color, but it must be done thoroughly, notes compared with notes from all available sources, until the picture is so complete no person can pick it to pieces.

It seems to be the rule in the majority of juvenile publications (and with the majority of juvenile book publishers) that the characters should be young people, and that they must work out their own problems without the assistance of adults. Madeline Branding is the exception in this field. She uses adults in her stories, and their problems are often part of the story. But few of us can hope to compete with Madeline Branding!

Juvenile markets will be listed tomorrow.

NEW LOCOMOTIVES
TORONTO, Ont.—Several new locomotives, entirely different from those operating in North America and European railroads, are being planned by the Canadian National Railways. It is understood, designs and drawings are being kept secret.

the change in the old man's will is recorded. A girl who impersonates the granddaughter in an effort to get the money is murdered and Mary herself nearly done away with before the mystery is solved by Regis Toomey, her sweetheart. The cast also includes Wallace Ford, Arthur Hohl, Lucien Littlefield, Hedda Hopper and Evelyn Knapp.

"Buddy Steps Out" completes the program.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" and "The Case of the Lucky Legs" show for the last times at Walker's tonight.

"The Dark Angel" concerns the lives of three residents of rural England from childhood until after the World War. The girl adores one of the men and is adored by the other. When both men go to the front, the one she adores finally realizes he loves her, and makes arrangements to marry her when he gets leave. The plans are shattered when leave is suddenly cancelled. After he is reported killed the girl feels her life is shattered. Finally she becomes engaged to the other man, but in a crisis that arises, he proves his deep devotion for her in a gloriously happy ending. The cast includes Janet Beecher, Henrietta Crossman and John Halliday.

"One Frightened Night" progresses through a series of rapid-fire happenings, both amusing and thrilling. Mary Carlisle is given five million dollars by her grandfather, Charles Grapewin. A group of his friends and relatives, thus shut out of inheritances they expected, resent this and are suspected of trying to kill her before

The students will play prepared programs before an imported examiner, Danz said.

Details Announced

Contestants who can creditably play four, five or six selections will be placed on the district honor roll of the guild. Those who play seven, eight or nine compositions, will have their names placed on the state of California honor roll, while the students who, capably, present 10 or more compositions, will attain the national honor roll.

The Orange county contest will be the first of 50 similar contests to be held throughout the United States, from Boston, Mass., to San Diego. The final event is scheduled for New York City, during the first week in June. When the competition is ended more than 1000 young pianists will have appeared in the programs.

All insurance men of Orange county are invited to hear Samuel L. Carpenter Jr., insurance commissioner for California, who will be special guest and speaker at a dinner in James cafe tonight at 6:30 o'clock, sponsored by Orange County Life Underwriters' association.

"This is the regular monthly meeting of the association," secretary Rolla Hay's Jr. declared, "but we feel many insurance men who do not belong to the group may wish to hear Mr. Carpenter. Our organization will welcome all insurance men of the county who may wish to join with us."

A large attendance is expected, to include several new members recently taken into the association and special guests will be introduced.

Details Announced

An entertaining musical program is being arranged by Lloyd G. Rowell, program chairman.

JOBLESS GROUP GIVEN TIME TO MOVE PROJECT

As a move to assist a community enterprise, city council last night granted the United Cooperative Exchange No. 1 a 30-day period in which to move its woodyard from 1520-24 West Third to "some convenient location in the industrial area."

Newell A. Lucas, president of the cooperative, had asked permission to maintain the woodyard at its present location but the council was informed residents of the district have been complaining of the noise created by activity at the location.

"I suggest that the cooperative find an industrial location where the neighbors won't complain," Councilman William Penn said. "I believe we should give the cooperative understanding that it must move later, but I am not in favor of kicking the organization off without giving it time to find a new location," Councilman Joe Smith declared.

The council denied the permission to continue the yard at its present location, but granted 30 days in which the group may find a new location. Smith suggested the cooperative might be able to use a 7 1/2 acre tract of city property adjacent to the city pound, along Baker street.

HOLLYWOOD HAPPENINGS

By PAUL HARRISON, Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28.—The haze of smoke is just beginning to lift from Flickerville's cycle of war pictures, and now we've got ships. Everybody who isn't unfurling a top or batten down a hatch is learning a chantey or fumbling with a sextant.

It may be that "Mutiny on the Bounty" had something to do with the nautical cycle, or else it was just one of those coincidences, like two and two making four. Anyway, every one of the studios is more or less at sea.

There's "Captain Blood," for one. And "Hell Ship Morgan" for another. "Anything Goes" has just been launched with appropriate ceremonies, and a second and saltier musical will be "Follow the Fleet," which has ballads by old Admiral Irving Berlin. "Showboat," a fresh-water revival, is just getting up steam at the Universal dock.

Fifteen boats of various kinds are moored in the Twentieth Century-Fox canal, and the company is readying four pictures of the sea, or with major aquatic sequences. In addition, Fox biographers are working on a story of John Paul Jones.

Sharks and Gerra
"Prisoner of Shark Island" will have a troupe of real sharks cavorting in the moat surrounding a reproduction of the infamous old fortress-prison off the coast of Florida. Warner Baxter has to go swimming with them. The interior of Fort Jefferson, incidentally, has been constructed as a complete cyclorama, the largest, most massive interior set ever built.

The ghosts of a billion malaria germs flit about the big stage where "A Message to Garcia" is being photographed. Fetid swamps are all over the place; mounted men splash through jungle streams, and Wallace Beery takes many a dip as he flounders along. Day 1 was there, camera and staff were perched on a raft moored in the middle of a pool.

Shirley's a Sailor
"Black Gang" (once "Captain Lash") is a steamer stockholder story. And "Captain January" is all about a lighthouse and a rock-bound coast on which Shirley Temple is washed up. For this picture they built an inland sea on another sound stage, and on it float real boats.

When fog drifts over the water and platoons of workmen heave on a couple of wave machines, the whole thing becomes astonishingly realistic even to a visitor on the set. Shirley's a fine sailor, but two of the crew of the coast guard cutter which bobs in the tank had to be replaced when they got seasick.

Paying Liner
Executives of this studio have a quiet little snicker for themselves whenever they read about the mounting deficits of steamship companies. For Fox owns the most profitable ship in the world, although it never has been launched, and never will be. It's a reproduction of about half of a large ocean liner, and cost $35,000 to build. But it has been used in numerous pictures, and

DUNTON POINTS TO SUCCESS OF CREDIT FIRM

Organized eight years ago to provide credit for prospective new and second-hand Ford car purchases, Universal Credit company has made sound and substantial progress even through the depression period, George Dunton, local Ford dealer and UCC representative in this district, pointed out today.

The UCC plan is available at the Dunton headquarters, 810 North Main, with a helpful credit service offered by U. C. C. to prospective buyers.

The credit organization, during its eight years' existence, has financed the purchase of new Fords and used Fords sold by Ford dealers, in the amount of more than one and a half billion dollars, serving more than 2,600,000 Ford customers. Under the UCC plans, after the usual low down-payment, the Ford buyer can purchase his Ford car anywhere in the country on installments of only $25 a month, Dunton pointed out.

"The cost of this extension of credit is only one-half of one per cent per month on the original unpaid balance and insurance," he said. "Insurance is carried in the payment plan at small cost, providing protection from theft, collision, flood, windstorm, tornado, cyclone, riot and other elements of physical damage."

"The major factor that makes the $25 per month UCC low cost plan possible is the great lasting value and public acceptance of the Ford V-8. More than 2,600,000 Ford V-8's have been sold in a period of four years, including the two years of the depression's most difficult period. The UCC is more than an exclusive credit institution serving Ford purchasers and dealers. We look upon UCC as an active arm of the Ford sales force, having an important bearing both upon increased sales and goodwill. A buyer delights in dealing with an organization which gives him prompt and courteous treatment and extends him absolute fairness at all times."

TELEVISION TALK SET FOR TONIGHT

PLACENTIA, Jan. 28.—LeRoy Leishman, television expert and inventor will be the principal speaker at the cafeteria of the school this evening. The speaker will give his address in the assembly hall of the Valencia high school.

Temptation
The raids on Hollywood talent conducted by Michael Balcon and other English producers have been the biggest single influence in keeping screen salaries at their fabulous levels. Worst headache for local companies is that foreign rivals offer to pay not only higher wages, but the British income tax as well.

For one reason and another, not many players succumb to the temptation. The reason Richard Dix hasn't is that he refuses to leave his twin baby boys and his wife. Robert and Richard are too young to travel. So Dix continues to struggle along on from $40,000 to $50,000 while the English offer $80,000—clear.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifl with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD preparation and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold tablet. It is definite and internal—and it does the four important things. It opens the bowels, combats the infection in the system, relieves the headache and fever and tones and fortifies the system. Don't be satisfied with anything less than that. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists. Accept no substitute.

New Auditorium At High School Will Be Decorated

SCHOOL BOARD DECIDES PLANS TO BE CHANGED

Santa Ana High school's new auditorium building, now expected to be completed by the end of March, will not be left unfinished, with bare, gloomy walls, it was assured last night when the board of education gave approval to a $6400 job of high-class interior decorating.

Unwilling themselves to let the new building go along with an unlovely interior, and strongly urged by Architects Allison and Allison not to neglect so important a factor in the general appearance of the building, for the sake of such a comparatively small saving, the board approved a motion by M. B. Yonel, seconded by Dr. Margarette Baker, to recommend work change orders in the contract to the state board of public building reconstruction.

Contracts Awarded

The change orders entail a painting contract of $2400 to Contractor Walter F. Sorenson, of Santa Ana, for painting all class-rooms and corridors, and a $4000 decorating contract to E. Peterson, of Los Angeles, who submitted designs for the auditorium and little theater last night. Peterson's designs brought expressions of approval from the board members.

A possible additional expense of $150 may be entailed for rental of scaffolding in the main auditorium, which has been left in place, and for erecting scaffolding in the little theater, where the plasterer's scaffolding had been removed, according to General Contractor Theron Means. Architect Allison told the board last night that he believed specifications for the contract called for the scaffolding to be left for the decorators. In such event, there will be no additional cost for that item.

'KANGAROO' BICYCLE GIVES INTREPID RIDER NEW THRILL

By MALCOLM BOSTWICK

After all, there may be something new under the sun—down yonder at Balboa beach, anyhow—and if you've never watched a kangaroo in the act of being in an awful hurry, you should go down to the Orange county beach resort and "take a squint" at the latest thing in Nersty Fashions.

It's the Kangaroo Bicycle! You're a boy or "kangaroo girl" is to just stand upon the kangaroo bike's scooter-like "floor" and act like a kangaroo-in-an-awful-hurry and there you are. You're to be classified thereafter among the expert kangaroos.

The vehicle, chainless, gearless and self-propelled (that is, by yourself, myself, his self or herself), is reported to be absolutely safe, a grace and rhythm developer, with nothing to get out of order—unless it's the breathing apparatus of the rider. On a kangaroo bicycle, in less than a block you can huff and puff your way to a "daily dozen" in exercises and more than that many laughs. If you don't believe it, ask the man or woman, boy or girl, who rides one (or tries to), or the man—Phil Huyssen—who has been introducing many of them during the weekend, at resorts and spas of Southern California.

Called "Ingo-Bikes"

The man who's introducing the vehicular kangaroos calls them "Ingo-Bikes" after the manufacturing company, but don't let him fool you. They may be the technical name but it's only an alias. They're still just plain ol' Kangaroo bicycles and you gotta watch a kangaroo in action before you can ride one well enough to get "expert" classification.

The bike has a platform, like a scooter's, upon which you stand, bicycle wheels with pneumatic tires—front wheel slightly smaller than rear one—and handlebars. The platform is attached firmly to the front wheel, as on a scooter. But the rear end of the platform hangs on foot-long rods which are attached to the outside of the rear wheel hub in such manner that the rods and rear end of the platform swing in a circle about the hub when the vehicle is in full motion, just as the man on the flying trapeze swings in a circle when he gets up momentum enough to make a complete turn. Or as the driving piston of a locomotive in motion.

The Idea Is This

Now the idea of the "kangaroo man," "kangaroo woman," "kangaroo boy" or "kangaroo girl" is to get a running, momentum-creating start before hopping upon the platform. Once the kangaroo bike is in motion, the rider grabs the handlebars firmly and rides up and down on the platform as an ordinary bicycle rider might ride upon one peddle while it turned. And of course the up-and-down motion of the platform is accompanied by forward motion of the kangaroo bike! With the entire platform moving rhythmically in an arc at the rear wheel hub, any self-respecting kangaroo would have perfect right to get jealous of an expert kangaroo bike rider!

Phil Huyssen, representing the Ingo-Bike interests of Chicago, declared 50 of the vehicles were delivered to Palm Springs yesterday, just for fun. And exercise. He said they will be introduced throughout the country.

You gotta admit the kangaroo bike is tops in Nersty Fashions today. And maybe it's something new under the sun—we gotta check up on that!

MOTORIST WHO DELAYS TO PAY DOUBLED FEES

Registration of an automobile prior to midnight, January 30, is the only means of avoiding payment of double vehicle license fees this year, Howard E. Deems, registrar of vehicles, declared today in warning motorists against delay.

Under the new vehicle license fee act there can be no extension of time against assessment of 100 per cent penalty, Deems stated.

"One hundred per cent vehicle license fee penalty means double payment of the levy that is assessed on autos at rate of $1.75 per $100 valuation," he said.

"In some instances, the penalty would make the payment due, more than $20. All vehicle department offices and California highway patrol units, are working at top speed to save citizens the penalty and I urge that the public cooperate fully."

TO HOLD LAST OFFICE CLASS HERE TUESDAY

Tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at Lathrop Junior High school the final meeting of the office practice class of the Santa Ana adult education department will be held, it was announced today.

The group, which has been devoting this month to modern information about the medical secretarial field, will have the opportunity to hear Miss Idabel Durgan on the subject of "Tact in Your Contacts." Miss Durgan is director of nurses in the Orange County Health Department and has had much experience in contacting private patients as well as in working for the public good.

W. W. Wieman, principal of the Lathrop Evening High School, invites all nurses, doctor's secretaries, or others interested in the medical secretarial field to be present. Questions as to tactful procedure in difficult situations will be welcome, and plans for the new term in the Evening Schools will be presented.

TO REORGANIZE MARTIN PILOTS' GROUP FRIDAY

Plans for reorganizing the former Eddie Martin Pilots' association will be discussed Friday night at a dinner-meeting to be held at 7 o'clock in the Green Cat cafe, according to Dale Deckert, of the Eddie Martin Airport staff.

A scientific program, including showing of the motion picture "Aerial Progress", by Zeno Klinker, aviation authority who also will talk, will follow a steak dinner and business session. The dinner and meeting are open to anyone interested in aviation regardless of whether they were members of the old association, Deckert said.

The film also will include a five-reel picture and one of the most fascinating and thrilling pictorial histories of the industry that has ever been presented, Deckert said. Said to be the most authentic and complete historical aviation film in the world, the picture was completed by Klinker, after 12 years research and work. Many of the pictures were taken by Klinker.

A few of the interesting phases of aviation included in the film are pictures of Santos Dumont flying an early motor-driven dirigible, in France in 1900, before the development of the airplane. Pictures of the Knabenshue brothers and their dirigible, among the first to be flown in the United States, also will be shown.

Old Flights Shown
The film also will include flights of the Wright brothers from 1903 to 1908; flights by Farman in 1907, Curtiss, Latham and Bleriot, in France in 1909; early air meets and the first attempt to fly the English channel in 1909.

Theodore Roosevelt's flight in 1910 will be included in the picture along with pictorial records of the achievements of such aviation pioneers as Beachey, Hoxsey, Houdini, Harriet Quimby, Brookings, Johnston, Coffyn and Art Smith.

Aviation History

Aviation history made during the World war will be pictured, along with action pictures of some of the most famous pilots of the war. The picture will trace the development of aviation through the year, including the first Atlantic flights in 1919, Lindbergh's feat, the exploits of Chamberlain and polar flights, including those of Amundsen, Ellsworth, Byrd and Wilkins.

Demonstrations of every type of airplane and dirigible will be included in the film which will end with a pictorial history of the accomplishments of the present day heroes of aviation including: Art Goebel, Wiley Post, Amelia Earhart, Elmer Smith, Jimmie Doolittle, Frank Hawks, Floyd Bennett, Al Williams, and Roscoe Turner.

DISABLED VETS PLANNING FOR DISTRICT MEET

Plans for the Eighth District D. A. V. meeting at Riverside Sunday will be laid at the semi-monthly meeting of Jack Fisher chapter, Disabled American Veterans of the World War tomorrow evening at the K. of C. hall at 8 o'clock, according to an announcement by V. L. Brown, chapter commander.

A large delegation of local D. A. V. members is expected to attend this convocation inasmuch as the mid-winter state meeting has been temporarily postponed. With the approach of the annual state convention in a few months time business of interest to all disabled will be discussed at the district meeting, Brown said.

Progress of plans for the Eighth Annual Military Ball sponsored by a committee of citizens in behalf of the Jack Fisher chapter will be given by Harry S. Pickard, chairman. The military ball is looked upon as a monument to the memory of their deceased leader, Jack Fisher.

Important dates in the immediate future include a hospital visit scheduled for Sunday, February 9, at the San Fernando Veterans hospital, when a large caravan is expected to travel to the foothill hospital. On February 7 an invitation from the Canadian Legion will be accepted to participate in their installation of officers.

Details of Card Party Are Announced for Birthday Fete

As the long anticipated date of the President's party Thursday night draws near, the city's prominent women who are bending every effort to make this year's event fully as enjoyable and quite as successful financially as its predecessors, have their plans well in hand for the evening.

To Mrs. Charles V. Davis, a past president of Santa Ana Ebells society, was accorded the responsibility of planning the card party to be conducted in Ebells clubhouse simultaneously with the dancing at Veterans' hall. Mrs. Davis, with Mrs. Roy V. Shafer as co-chairman, today announced some of the perfected plans for this event. One of Mrs. Shafer's responsibilities has been to arrange for prizes, and these will go to the holder of high score at each table in play. Tables and their equipment for the games will be in charge of Mrs. George Raymer, Mrs. Joseph P. Smith and Miss Elizabeth Smith.

The decorative arrangement of the room will be in charge of Mrs. William H. Spurgeon. Climaxing the games will be the tea hour with Mrs. J. C. Seaton and Mrs. Emily Munro in charge of table details. Mrs. George Briggs, Mrs. Fred C. Rowland, Mrs. Emrys D. White and Mrs. Sam Nau will pour, and each will have a bevy of assistants drawn in the main from Junior and Girls' Ebells societies.

Mrs. Sexton and Mrs. Munro will have on their committee as assistants, Mesdames Cyrus H. Lurker, Harold Nelson, Milo K. Tedstrom, J. F. Jacoby, Roy Renwick, F. E. Farnsworth, Robert G. Tuthill, Russell Wilson and Miss Nan Mead. Miss Mead and Mrs. Aldrie Worswick have the added task of seeing to the advance ticket sales, and anyone not yet in possession of tickets for the event, may secure them from either of them.

Santa Anans are aware that proceeds from earlier President's birthday parties, have yielded a certain percentage to the community in which each was given. But this year a much larger sum will remain for local charitable work among meningitis sufferers. Of the sum taken in by the Santa Ana Ebells and card party, exactly 70 per cent will remain here for the city fund. The remainder will go, according to custom, to the foundation at Warm Springs, Va. Seventy per cent is the largest portion ever retained by the individual communities for work in local fields.

Social Briefs

DEPARTING COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Evans, a newly-married couple who have been living in the Bungalow apartments since their marriage last October in Yuma, Ariz., left today for Santa Monica. They will spend a short time there preparatory to their departure to establish their home in Sawtelle, where Mr. Evans will be employed with the Walgreen Drug company. His bride is the former Miss Bernice Miles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miles, West Washington avenue. The young people were honored at a farewell dinner last night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil E. Adams, 415 South Birch street.

PARTY PLANS

In recognition of the years of faithful service of Mrs. Sallie Powell, 117 El Portal, as First Congregational church visitor, are plans for a reception which the members are to hold tomorrow night, 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock, in the parsonage home of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Perry F. Schrock, 205 West Twentieth street. Mrs. Powell is resigning from her activities as official church visitor and the reception is planned in honor of the fine service she has extended over the period of years. Plans are being made by the board of deaconesses of the church, comprising Miss Mary Kintigh, Mesdames Carrie Watson, J. A. Ranney, H. L. Bascom, W. B. Hutton and George Griffith. They are extending cordial invitation to all of Mrs. Powell's friends both in and out of the congregation, to share the hospitality. Although giving up her duties as visitor, Mrs. Powell will continue to serve the church on a part time basis as financial secretary.

NEW BABY DAUGHTER

Mrs. E. E. Keech, 319 South Main street, and Mrs. Ruby Hickox of Laguna Beach, formerly of this city, were two very happy Orange county "grands" today, because of the little daughter born Sunday afternoon in Glendale, to their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dana Keech of that city. Mrs. Dana Keech was Miss Jewell Hickox of Santa Ana. The baby, who will be christened Marian, balances things nicely in the family of the young Keeches, who now have two sons, Eugene and Roger, and two daughters, Joanne and the new baby, Marian. Both mother and baby are doing nicely, and Mrs. Keech is anticipating an early return with her infant daughter, to the new home just completed in Glendale ready for their occupancy. Both Mrs. E. E. Keech and Mrs. Hickox are hoping for early opportunity to go to Glendale and welcome the new baby.

SORORITY INITIATE

With a definite objective, Miss Hazel Bergee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bergee, 926 Orange avenue, is making this her senior year at University of California at Los Angeles, an important one as she majors in education preparatory to a teaching career. Miss Bergee has just been initiated into Alpha Delta chapter of Pi Lambda Theta, national honorary educational sorority, a definite recognition of her scholastic ability. She went to U.C.L.A. from Santa Ana junior college, where she was an honor roll student as she was in high school. This year of senior work includes practice teaching in a school near the U.C.L.A. campus.

Review of Clever Play Entertains Ebells Society

"First Lady," the scintillant farce of Washington social and diplomatic circles, which is proving such a success on the eastern stage, was reviewed yesterday for Ebells society of Santa Ana, with all the skill, humor and sparkle that Mona Summers Smith (Mrs. Harvey Smith) brings to the roles which she plays with such frequency with Santa Ana Community Players association.

Mrs. Smith, a member of the city library force, has among other phases of her work, the presentation of reviews before various organizations, and is greatly in demand. She was at her best yesterday in summarizing the qualities of "First Lady," and talked briefly on the authors, Katherine Dayton and George Kaufman. Her reading of excerpts was spirited and understanding, well adapted to bringing out the satirical qualities of the play.

In advance of the entertainment interval, Mrs. Fred C. Rowland presided at a brief business meeting in which various future events were announced. These were not confined to club and section activities, but also included the President's Birthday party of Thursday night, with its varied features of dancing in Veterans' hall and card play in Ebells clubhouse. Chief in interest among announcements however was that relative to the speaking engagement of Amelia Barhart in the clubhouse on Tuesday night, February 11. This will be open to the public upon payment of a nominal admission fee, with tickets to students at half price.

Clarke, 1617 West Tenth street for some time, left yesterday for San Francisco for a week's trip. They will return here for another visit, concluding their stay here in mid-February.

Mr. Willis is Mrs. Clarke's father. Miss Hubbard and Thomas Shannon are her niece and nephew.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. La Grave of Seattle, Wash., who have been in the Southland since the holidays, have arrived for a visit in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Bird, 1129 West Seventeenth street.

Mrs. C. M. Knox of Los Angeles has been here since January 1 as a guest in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. I. Clark, 1611 North Broadway. Dr. Clark, who has been ill for some time, is reported making a steady recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Willsey, 206 Pacific avenue, were weekend guests in Hollywood of Mrs. Willsey's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Goff.

Terry E. Stephenson, who has been ill at his home, 1522 North Broadway, for the past few days, is sufficiently recovered to return for a short time daily, to his duties as county treasurer.

Mrs. Charles F. Hyde Jr., 201 West Twentieth street, and Miss Tessie Childers, 618 North Baker street, spent the week-end in Los Angeles as guests of Mrs. Hyde's friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jean E. Kuder.

Mrs. F. K. Stowe of Pasadena, formerly of this city, has been spending the past few days with Mrs. F. A. Stowe, North Ross street.

Dr. Nortons Entertain With Buffet Dinner In Their Home

Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Norton received a little group of guests Sunday night at a smartly-appointed dinner party in their home, 429 South Birch street.

Peach blossoms centered the table from which dinner was served buffet style.

Mrs. Norton was Miss Evelyn Spengler of Pasadena preceding her marriage to the Santa Ana dentist last November. Guests of the young couple Sunday night included Pasadena residents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Barnewolt and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Wallace; together with Mr. and Mrs. Arold Norton of Balboa Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Norton of Santa Ana.

What do you do with stale bread? At any rate I hope it isn't decently interred in the garbage pail! Just watch the bread box every two or three days, sort out the odd slices and let them dry after the heat has been turned off the dinner oven. Roll or grind and keep not longer than one week. There's nothing you can do about it.

Use for breeding meats and for crumbling tops of baked creamed dishes, or use for crumb griddle cakes or half and half in muffins. When you want a very tasty luncheon dish, try this: Any left over meat, grind (1 scant cup) and mix with 2 cups mashed potato and a little onion. Knead well and form into flat cakes, dip in egg, then in crumbs and fry slowly in butter.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

1-4 pound hamburger fried in 1 teaspoon butter with 1 small onion, minced
1-2 cup tomato soup and 1-4 cup hot water
Salt and pepper
2 slices zwiebach
Tea without sugar.
Calory total, 365.

Melt butter and pinch off bits of meat into hot butter, stir until crisp and brown. Add minced onion, soup, hot water and seasonings, and simmer for 30 minutes. Serve over the zwiebach. A couple of dill pickles may garnish this dish if you like them.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Creole Potroast of Beef
4 to 6 pounds of beef roast
2 pounds veal steak
1 fresh pork chop
1-4 pound salt pork
5 large onions
2 yellow turnips
5 carrots
2 cloves of garlic
3 bay leaves
1 heaped tablespoon fat
Small bunch of parsley, chopped
Salt, pepper and cayenne to taste

Tiny pinch of cloves and 1-8 tsp. of allspice.
Cut the salt pork into thin shreds. Mince one clove of garlic and mix with salt, pepper, cayenne, cloves and allspice. Roll the strips in this and insert them through meat with larding needle or bind them on the meat. Rub meat now with salt and pepper and a tiny bit of flour. Melt the fat, slice one onion and along with the onion quickly near the meat on all sides. Cover and simmer, adding not more than an 1-3 cup of water as needed. (needs not less than 4 hours slow cooking.)

In another pot boil the pork hock and veal with 4 quarts of water, seasoning with bay leaf, garlic, salt, pepper, dash of cloves, and all of the vegetables minced fine. Cook until the meat will almost fall from bones. Remove from broth, mince fine, strain broth and add whatever the meat needs, plus a little flour thickening. Take up the pot roast, turn this mince into the brown pan gravy, stir over a hot fire and serve with the hot potroast.

Any left over roast may be put into a small deep pan, the mince poured around it and allowed to set for a cold meat plate. With sliced liverwurst and deviled eggs, a big green salad, hot rolls, cake and coffee, you have the makings of a Sunday supper quite good enough for the family get-together.

That Quill Pen club members may have no misunderstanding of dates when they must read original manuscripts before the group, they received their schedule for the year last night at the final January meeting with Mrs. Frank Was, 617 Orange avenue. Mrs. Harry M. Smith and Mrs. S. B. Marshall had arranged the sched-

RETURNS OF PACKING HOUSE FOR SEASON OVER $159,000

OLIVE, Jan. 28.—The volume of fruit handled through the packing house of the Olive Hillside Groves was 20 per cent greater in 1935 than it was in 1934, according to the report of F. B. Maxwell, secretary-manager at the annual meeting of the organization today.

The report showed that the packing house payroll for the year amounted to $17,825.70.

A major improvement during the year was the addition of a pre-cooler having a capacity of 18 cars. This permits of considerable saving in handling costs since it is no longer necessary to transport the packed fruit to a pre-cooling plant at Pomona.

Among the equipment improvements was the installation of a new double sizer. In addition to the moneys received by the growers from the sale of this year's crop, there were refunds amounting to $19,414.93.

The meeting followed a banquet attended by 125 members and guests. The dinner was served by the ladies Get-Together club of the St. Paul's Lutheran church. Tables were set up in two large rooms in the packing house.

W. A. Greenleaf, president of the association, presided at the banquet and at the business sessions which followed. In addition to the annual report of the secretary-manager and discussions of numerous phases of citrus culture and marketing, short talks were made by representatives of the Mutual Orange Distributors, the co-operative citrus marketing organization with which the local association is affiliated.

Growers are extremely optimistic over 1936 prospects. Indications are that prices will be higher than they were in 1935, it was stated.

HERE ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT BRAN

Brought Out by Tests with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Some years ago, there was considerable difference of opinion regarding the use of bran. So to discover the actual facts of the case, the Kellogg Company asked for a series of laboratory tests at leading universities.

Experimental studies on a group of healthy women showed that the continued use of bran was thoroughly satisfactory. Unlike cathartics, it did not lose its effect.

Other independent tests on men indicated that, with certain people, the "bulk" in bran was more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Laboratory analysis proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplied vitamin B and iron as well as plenty of bulk. This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. It absorbs a great deal of moisture, and cleanses the intestinal tract.

ALL-BRAN corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It is the natural way—far better than using pills and tablets. Serve as a cereal—or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE TWYMITES

Brave Scouty proved the best of all at building. "Hey, what makes you stall?" he shouted at Vee Duncy. "You're an awful lazy lad. The rest have done more than their share, while you just loaf. That isn't fair. To help our friend the hunter, we should all be very glad."

"Aw, can I help it, if I'm tired? At first, I really was inspired, and then I grew tired out," replied poor Duncy, with a frown.

"Perhaps it didn't seem so much, but I lugged lots of boards and such. The work was almost finished, so I thought that I'd flop down." "Well, no harm's done," the hunter said. "The wagon's set. Let's go ahead and get the animals aboard. That may be quite a task."

"As soon as they are loaded in, a real long trip I will begin. Now, don't scare any of the beasts away. That's all I ask."

"I'll be the trainer, once again. You'll all know I am real good when you see me march the animals," Brave Scouty loudly cried.

"A board will be the gangplank and I'm sure that it will work out grand. Let's place one 'gainst the wagon, and be sure that it won't slide."

The board was propped so 'twould work right, and then there came a funny sight, as Scouty raised a little branch and loudly yelled, "Let's go!"

"Come on, you beasts, all scramble in. A steady march now must begin!" The tall giraffe was first, and Dotty yelled, "Don't be so slow!"

The tiger was the next, and then the Tines shook with laughter when the little bear stood on two feet and walked aboard that way.

"You're next," yelled Scouty to the deer. "Run in! There's not a thing to fear!" The beast did as 'twas told, and all the bunch began to cheer.

(The Tines find out why the elephant didn't climb aboard, in the next story.)

"PALESTINE" OF RUSSIA

FIRST SETTLERS OF BIREBJAN

TEN THOUSAND Jews are pioneering toward the rise of a permanent Jewish homeland under Soviet wings. A territory about the size of Belgium, or half again as extensive as Palestine, which is being developed by Jews under the care of Great Britain, has been set aside for similar development in Siberia. It is called Birebjan, and is inhabited primarily by Jews from Soviet Russia.

In the midst of its prairie lands are great forests of valuable cedar, mineral-bearing mountains, and resources of iron and coal. Foundation of this new Soviet "Palestine" is a back-breaking operation, but the Jews there are exultant over its prospects, while others consider this only another of Russia's efforts to build buffer communities against the eventual invasion by Japan.

Council Lets Contract For New Disposal Plant

$79,753 BID OF BEACH CITY FIRM ACCEPTED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 28.—Contract for the construction of the new city sanitary sewer disposal plant as let by the council last night to the Hoagland Engineering and Construction company of Long Beach on a bid of $79,753.20. Construction work is to start February 15 and the plant is to be completed within 140 working days.

The bid was the lowest of five received. The highest bid was $89,666, offered by Construction Engineers, Inc., of Los Angeles. J. C. Hickey of Alhambra, bid $87,000; Kester Manufacturing company of Riverside, $89,000, and E. C. King Construction company of Los Angeles, $87,504.70.

Bid Exceeds Estimates
The low bid was over $4000 higher than the estimate made by the F. S. Curry company of San Bernardino, consulting engineers employed by the city to supervise the work in conjunction with city Engineer Harry Overmeyer. Investigator O'Connell of the PWA attended the council session and inspected the bids.

It was explained that the estimated cost was made several months ago and that there has been a substantial advance in material costs since the estimate was made. The city will have to make up the difference. The funds are available in the city treasury.

Urges More Hydrants
H. V. Anderson, manager of the American States Water Service company, in a letter to the city council asked that additional fire hydrants be installed in the oil field. The letter was referred to Councilman John H. Marion, chairman of the oil committee, and to City Engineer Overmeyer for investigation and recommendation.

Chris H. King, realtor, submitted to the council in a letter, a price of $2250 on two lots at the corner of Acacia and Alabama to be used in widening and straightening Frankfort street, main east side entrance to the business district. The matter of the purchase of the two lots was held over for a week. The plan for widening Frankfort street at the Alabama and Acacia intersection requires the purchase of one other lot across the street from the lots offered by King.

Wants Salaries Cut
A. W. Morehouse in a letter to the council asked that the salaries of city councilmen be cut from $50 a month to $10 a month. The letter was read and ordered filed. The state board of equalization in a letter to City Attorney Ray Overacker granted the city permission to exceed current expenditures by $32,653, the money to be used to pay the city's part of the cost of the new sewer.

Bids for supplying the city with gas for municipal use were opened. Nine bids were received. The council deferred action on the bids until the regular meeting next Monday night.

The STRANGE CASE OF JULIA CRAIG

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JULIA CRAIG, pretty young secretary to GEORGE WOODFORD, lawyer, is ambitious to become a night nurse. She lives in an apartment with AMY SANDERS.

PETER KEMP, young lawyer, is in love with Julia but she has refused him. Julia declares she never wants to see him again.

Woodford gives a party aboard his yacht and asks Julia to come to sing for his guests, including GINTRA LE, dancer; MRS. JOSEPH, widow; HUGO NASH, and ROYAL NESBITT.

On board, Julia discovers the trip is to be much longer than a weekend. The yacht lands at Evergreen Island where Woodford has a lodge.

Julia meets TOM PAYSON, who tries to help her get away. She is discovered on the yacht and accused of tampering with the radio. After an angry scene he is allowed to depart.

The men go hunting and Nesbitt is injured.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

When Royal Nesbitt had been administered a stiff brandy by the excited Obo he went immediately aboard the yacht so that Captain Blakely could give him adequate first-aid from the medical kit.

At the lodge, under the direction of Woodford, preparations for leaving were swift indeed. Julia was certain that it was not the seriousness of Nesbitt's wound which prompted the sudden breakup of the party. It was not, she felt, because of her own presence that Woodford, but rather its implication.

She was almost sure that Hugo Nash's aim had been calculated and obviously the Lee girl thought so, too. There had been something vaguely furtive about the three men as they returned that morning. It was as if they had come to an agreement of silence before the women.

The path ended at beach, and there were marks where the bow of a small boat had cut into the sand. But beyond this there was no indication of the recent presence of Payson. What he had called "his island" was within shouting distance, but Julia could see nothing but a thick green anod, not even a spiral of smoke hinted at habitation—and there was no small boat moored on the shore opposite.

She stood there, uncertain whether to return to the yacht or stay behind in the hope of seeing Payson again. Somehow it didn't seem fair to leave on the Wood Nymph without some word—and yet, what assurance did she have that Payson was still camping on the adjacent island.

Shoving her hands helplessly into the pockets of her skirt she encountered a cool small cylinder which was a silver pencil. Amy Sanders had given her months ago. But neither of the pockets revealed even a scrap of paper on which to write a message for Payson. Then her glance happened to fall upon a piece of driftwood on the beach. Its surface was bleached white, and as she picked it up she discovered gratefully that it was dry. There was "little chance that Payson would find it—but at least, Julia decided, it was worth a try.

Holding the little silver pencil tightly she printed in black capitals on the wood: WOODFORD HAS DECIDED TO LEAVE FOR THE CITY. WISH I COULD THANK YOU FOR ALL YOUR TROUBLE, J. C.

Then she set the white wood near the marks on the sand, but out of reach of the tide; and with another and last look at the island beyond she started reluctantly back along the path.

Halfway to the other side of the island she met Woodford. He was red from exertion, and obviously relieved when he saw her.

"Didn't you know we were leaving?" he said petulantly. "Why run away without telling some of us?"

"I'm sorry. I thought you weren't going before an hour."

"Everybody's aboard and ready," Woodford told her.

Puzzled, Julia followed him down the path. She had never seen him like this and she was moved to ask how Nesbitt was getting along.

"He'll be all right. It wasn't serious."

Then why, Julia wondered, all Woodford's seriousness? Perhaps he was only piqued because his vacation jaunt had broken into troublesome fragments. But she could have asked him no more questions even if she'd wanted, for he rushed on down the path quite as if the Wood Nymph might leave without its owner. In a moment she saw Captain Bakely waiting in the stern of the power boat.

Cintria Lee was the only one in sight aboard the yacht except the members of the crew. When the tender reached the large craft, Woodford and Bakely went at once to the wheel house, and Julia sauntered aft to where Cintra sat smoking a cigarette.

"I was a little surprised when I saw you in the boat with Woodford," the dancer said.

"Why?" Julia sat in the deck chair beside Cintra, felt the sudden vibration of the engines as the Wood Nymph got under way.

"I had a notion perhaps you'd decided to stay married, with that handsome young man who tried to rescue you last night."

Julia turned to the girl. "You won't say anything?"

"I? It's no affair of mine."

"I almost wish I had stayed. Somehow I don't like the idea of being on this yacht again."

Cintria gave her a curious glance. "So you feel it, too?" She looked out over the rail a moment. Then: "I must be right about it."

"Right about what?" asked Julia quickly. There was something in the girl's tone that frightened her. Something ominous and sure.

But at her question Cintra only laughed. "It's probably just the jitters. I've been feeling that our bad luck hasn't run out. I've a notion to get into my berth and stay there until we land."

"Do you think Mr. Nesbitt is all right?"

Cintria nodded. "He's very lucky—lucky that Nash drank so much last night that his aim was shaky."

Her words might have meant everything, or nothing; and something told Julia not to press her for an explanation.

Obo served luncheon from his tray, seeking out the guests wherever they happened to be. Julia, who remained on the deck after Cintra had gone to her cabin, supposed that Woodford was attempting to avoid the strain and embarrassment of bringing them all together in the main cabin. She wondered if the whole cruise back to the city was to be like this. Almost afraid to move from her place, she consumed her sandwiches and coffee, then set the plate by her feet.

It wasn't long, however, before Woodford appeared. His mood

ANNUAL DINNER OF CIVIC BODY THIS EVENING

NEWPORT BEACH, Jan. 28.—Ed Alsworth, Los Angeles newspaperman, and Mayor Theodore Wyman, Jr., district engineer for the United States Army, will top the list of speakers tonight at the annual Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce dinner, to be held at 6:30 o'clock in the Newport Harbor Yacht club. A number of other speakers will be on the program.

Planned as a community celebration and inspirational meeting, the dinner will be marked by little routine business. President Mark J. Johnson of the chamber of commerce, will submit his annual report; L. W. Briggs will report for the election committee and Commodore Albert Soiland will report on plans for the celebration to be staged celebrating formal opening of the harbor.

Commodore W. H. Rohl, recently elected head of the Newport Harbor Yacht club, will speak briefly submitting suggestions for closer cooperation between the chamber of commerce and yacht club.

An orchestra has been secured to play during the dinner and several surprises in the way of entertainment have been promised by the committee in charge of the event.

ASSOCIATION HEARS NEWPORT MINISTER

CORONA DEL MAR, Jan. 28.—The Rev. Kemp Winkler, pastor of Christ Church by the Sea, Newport Beach, spoke at the meeting of the Corona Del Mar Civic association meeting Saturday night on the subject, "Living Artistically." He pointed out that all people should consider their thoughts of living on the things that inspire and ennoble character instead of thinking too much of material gain. Work of the association was commended by the speaker, William Kendall, president of the association, introduced the speaker.

Refreshments were served by the Mesdames Harold Benedict, Florence Anderson, and J. Douglas. Mrs. D. S. Lloyd was in charge of the program arrangement.

seemed to have lightened, for he smiled with a pleasant smile. As he sat down in the chair which Cintra had vacated Julia caught a faint odor of whiskey.

"Sorry to leave Evergreen Island," he asked.

"Well, I'll be so relieved to get back to town. I'm afraid I'm not very good at just—well, loafing."

Woodford laughed. "We'll both be back in the office soon enough, Julia. I'm dreadfully sorry, for your sake, that the trip turned out like this."

She did not answer at once. Then she told Woodford quietly that she didn't intend to resume her place as his secretary at Woodford and Brooks.

"When did you decide that?" he asked, astonished.

"A day or so ago."

"What's the reason? Not enough money—or have you decided to place right into this night club business?"

"I still intend to sing in a night club," Julia told him. "But I'm leaving Woodford and Brooks."

"Personal reasons?" interrupted Woodford, and laughed. He faced her squarely, leaning forward in his chair. "I think I know what you mean, Julia. And I think you're right about it, too. The truth is that I'm glad you're resigning. You see," she smiled, "I don't like the idea of making love to my secretary. Perhaps it's because these cartoonists make so much fun of men who do."

"I'm afraid I don't understand you."

"I think you do, Julia. All you have to do is decide whether you'll let me make love to you."

"I can make that decision very quickly, Mr. Woodford. It's no."

"I could still manage that interview with Smith Garland," she went on quietly. "And I wouldn't object to your having a career."

Her face white, Julia got to her feet. Anger rushed full into her throat and choked her words.

"That's really big of you, Mr. Woodford—and now let's not discuss ourselves, for the rest of the cruise!" She turned on her heel and hurried to her stateroom.

SANE LAW ENFORCEMENT

Traffic fatalities, due to drunken driving, will be considerably reduced in California if the legislature adopts a measure now being prepared by Judge James L. Allen of Orange county's supreme court.

Judge Allen is preparing a measure for introduction at the next session of the Legislature that would provide for confiscation of his automobile, by the state, when a man is convicted on a felony charge of drunken driving. The man would be released to support his family, under provisions of the law.

Such a measure would serve a two-fold purpose. First it would reduce traffic accidents and highway deaths and at the same time punish the driver, who insists on mixing alcohol and gasoline, without penalizing his innocent family and the taxpayers who are forced to support his family while the offender is in jail.

Under the bill being prepared by Judge Allen, minor offenders, instead of being sent to jail for their offense would have their automobile impounded.

It has been demonstrated time and time again that sending a man to jail for drunken driving will not prevent repetition of the offense. When he goes to jail he knows that the county will provide for his family. This same man, if he knows that he not only will have to continue to support his family, but lose his automobile and cannot own another, will hesitate before taking the risk.

Every law is a part of every contract and violation of the law does not abrogate an agreement, therefore the automobile dealer need not suffer under provisions of the measure. If the automobile is purchased on a contract the dealer could, if he so desired, require a bond guaranteeing payment of the purchase price in the event the car is confiscated.

The very fact that a bond is required in the purchase of an automobile would tend to reduce the traffic hazard by eliminating the irresponsible and lawless from the class of automobile owners.

With the traffic death toll mounting monthly and with liquor playing an active part in the major portion of these deaths the time for milkos methods in dealing with the problem has passed. The law enforcement agencies must come down on the offenders and come down hard.

At the same time it is manifestly unjust to penalize the taxpayers of a community for the sins of an individual, as it is unjust to punish the innocent family of the offender. Under the measure suggested by Judge Allen the punishment would more nearly fit the crime and be inflicted solely upon the offender.

RUDYARD KIPLING

Some men are given to the world that the power over which they rule as a genius might build great buildings, bridges and other man-made necessities for the advancement of man and science. Others bring professional skill that the finer things of life might be protected. Still others are possessed with the power for creating the inspirational. Such a man was Rudyard Kipling, English poet and novelist, whose place in life is comparable only to that of Shakespeare.

Over the world he has left there is little trace of his great work. No buildings, no bridges and no other visible thing stands out as a significant reminder that he once lived among the world's peoples. His work is hidden away between the pages, the pages of countless volumes which man consumes as fact.

Deprived of an army career because of his defective eyesight, Mrs. Kipling turned to the one profession which he knew he could do despite his physical handicap. It was a handicap that meant disappointment to Mr. Kipling, but to the world it meant the birth of a new genius. While others toiled with their hands in the advancement of machinery and science Mr. Kipling gave them inspiration, a requisite for the success of all things.

America entertained a kindred feeling toward the great Kipling, for when he married he turned to this country for his bride. In later years he was denied the honor of being crowned England's poet laureate supposedly because just motivated his "Widder of Windsor." America does not recognize significance in jest. It is quick to laugh and to forget the humor which sometimes is directed at its great. But, in England, it is different. We of the new world look upon the passing of Mr. Rudyard Kipling as the passing of Rudyard Kipling, poet-laureate of England. The jesting, if true, is forgotten. Mr. Kipling belonged to the 19th and 20th centuries, but the works he has left behind will belong to the centuries to come and his name will be made more immortal as they pass.

GREAT ASSET TO COMMUNITY

Few people realize the importance of a good golf course and country club to a community, such as Santa Ana. Even though the average citizen does not play golf, the importance of a good golf course and country club in helping build the community and bringing new citizens to the city, is something to be reckoned with. A progressive citizen who enjoys golf will hesitate to locate in a community, everything else equal, unless the community has a good golf course. It is to the interest of every citizen who owns real estate in Santa Ana and County to have a good, private golf course supported so that it is a credit to the community. Some of Santa Ana's forward-looking citizens have devoted much time and energy in trying to bring these conditions about and their efforts should be appreciated.

HOW LONG WILL EMPLOYMENT CONTINUE?

On Monday, we concluded an editorial in attempting to answer J. P. Baumgartner's question as to "how long do you think savings (capital), which you say do employ all these, how long would savings continue to employ them if there were no consumers with buying power to buy the suits of clothes and start the reimbursement (with profit) down the line?" We stated we would set forth concrete illustration to show that the saver who created capital from his savings was the party who gave the employment and not the spender or consumer. John Stuart Mill, discussing the subject, uses a foot-note, which is as follows:

"The following case, which presents the argument in a somewhat different shape, may serve for still further illustration:

"Suppose that a rich individual, A, expends a certain amount daily in wages or alms, which, as soon as received, is expended and consumed, in the form of coarse food, by the receivers. A dies, leaving his property to B, who discontinues this item of expenditure, and expends in lieu of it the same sum each day in delicacies for his own table. I have chosen this supposition, in order that the two cases may be similar in all their circumstances, except that which is the subject of comparison. In order not to obscure the essential facts of the case by exhibiting them through the hazy medium of a money transaction, let us further suppose that A, and B after him, are landlords of the estate on which both the food consumed by the recipients of A's disbursements, and the articles of luxury supplied for B's table, are produced; and that their rent is paid to them in kind, they giving previous notice what description of produce they shall require. The question is, whether B's expenditure gives as much employment or as much food to his poorer neighbors as A's gave."

"From the case as stated, it seems to follow that while A lived, that portion of his income which he expended in wages or alms, would be drawn by him from the farm in the shape of food for laborers, and would be used as such; while B, who came after him, would require, instead of this, an equivalent value in expensive articles of food, to be consumed in his own household; that the farmer, therefore, would, under B's regime, produce that much less of ordinary food, and more of expensive delicacies, for each day of the year, than was produced in A's time, and that there would be that amount less of food shared, throughout the year, among the laboring and poorer classes. Those who think differently, must, on the other hand, suppose that the luxuries required by B would be produced, not instead of, but in addition to, the food previously supplied to A's laborers, and that the aggregate produce of the country would be increased in amount. But when it is asked, how this double production would be effected—how the farmer, whose capital and labor were already fully employed, would be enabled to supply the new wants of B, without producing less of other things; the only mode which presents itself, is that he should first produce the food, and then, giving that food to the laborers whom A formerly fed, should by means of their labor, produce the luxuries wanted by B. This, accordingly, when the objectors are hard pressed, appears to be really their meaning. But it is an obvious answer, that on the supposition, B must wait for his luxuries till the second year, and they are wanted this year. By the original hypothesis, he consumes his luxuries during day by day, pari passu with the rations of bread and potatoes formerly served out by A to his laborers. There is not time to feed the laborers first, and supply B afterwards; he and they cannot both have their wants ministered to; he can only satisfy his own demand for commodities, by leaving as much of theirs, as was formerly supplied from that fund, unsatisfied. . . .

"A reserved from his personal consumption a fund which he paid away directly to laborers; B does the same, only instead of paying it to them himself, he leaves it in the hands of the farmer, who pays it to them for him."

"In our illustration we have supposed no buying and selling, or use of money. But the case as we have put it, corresponds with actual fact in everything except the details of the mechanism. The whole of any country is virtually a single farm and manufactory, from which every member of the community draws his appointed share of the produce, having a certain number of counters, called pounds sterling, put into his hands, which, at his convenience, he brings back and exchanges for such goods as he prefers, up to the limit of the amount. He does this as in our imaginary case, give notice beforehand what things he will require; but the dealers and producers are quite capable of finding it out by observation."

It is, as explained above, the money transactions that causes confusion and makes the average person believe that the spender, the consumer, causes employment and improves the living conditions of those employed.

We are very glad that this question has been brought up because there can be no understanding of economic problems and unemployment until this subject becomes clear in the mind of the average voter. Mr. Baumgartner has performed a service to the community by raising the question. We thank him.

We will, tomorrow, proceed with the discussion of unemployment resulting from certain laws passed in the United States as the result of the belief that the spender, the consumer, benefits the workers.

MOST GREAT MEN WERE BORN OF POOR PARENTS?

This has long been regarded as an axiom. Great Britain has the most complete records of the lives of distinguished citizens. The English dictionary of National Biographies contains notes on 30,000 eminent persons. Recently this entire library has been examined by Frederick Adams Wood and Alleyne Ireland, who found that the skilled and unskilled laboring classes have furnished approximately 12 per cent of these distinguished persons, while the "upper classes", i. e., the landed ancestors, professional and government classes, supply the remaining 88 per cent.

They also found that the proportion of illustrious citizens rising from the lower order of society has been steadily decreasing for the past century, so that now scarcely more than 4 per cent of England's great men rise from obscure families.

With modern means of communication and cheap printing, these facts are hard to explain. Possibly men will not make the sacrifice now as did Benjamin Franklin, who, when he was 16, gave up meat so that he could buy books,

Don't Look Now, But He's Still Standing There

Day By Day In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1935)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Political history was made during the weekend. The long-looked-for split in the Democratic party was crystallized by the speech of Alfred E. Smith, once the standard-bearer of his party for the presidency and three times governor of the most populous state of the union.

Anybody who saw and heard Al Smith deliver his address could not but have been impressed with the profound sincerity and depth of his convictions. It was not an ordinary political speech. It rose above the heights of personal ambition or party advantage. Some day, when the tumult and the shouting dies and historians look back on the fateful words of Mr. Smith, this speech will be ranked with those of Abraham Lincoln delivered in the critical period preceding the Civil war, when occurred the famous debates with Stephen Douglas.

For Al Smith put into carefully chosen words the feeling of millions of his countrymen, who believe in constitutional government, in government by laws and not by the arbitrary whim of man, in government by direct and explicit methods of constitutional amendment to meet social changes and economic vicissitudes, and not in government by usurpation, by subterfuge, by circumvention or even by benevolent dictatorship.

Speaking the simple, homely language of one who rose from news vending on the sidewalks of New York City to be the chief executive of a great state, Al Smith fought impersonally but effectively in his address against demagoguery and the setting up of class against class in America.

It was no new role, no afterthought of 1936, no hindsight that so often is better than foresight—on the contrary, anyone who cares to reread Al Smith's pronouncement against Franklin Roosevelt's so-called "forgotten man" speech, at St. Paul in the early part of 1932, will see a striking similarity in the argument made even then and the speech of last Saturday night.

Political effects of the Smith speech are difficult at this time to estimate with particularity. Certainly, he has given heart to the constitutional Democrats of the nation. But if President Roosevelt, who was listening in, did not also derive some important guidance from the Smith address, it will be a surprise to those who have always credited the president with a keen political intuition.

If Al Smith accomplished nothing else than to express to Roosevelt himself in unmistakable words the warning that millions of citizens are beginning to think seriously about the danger of the New Deal's adventures in unconstitutional government and to remind Mr. Roosevelt that anywhere from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 voters—whichever is believed to be Al Smith's minimum strength—may be lost to the Democratic party, it was worth while as a service to the president. For it is not too late for the president to give heed to the sound philosophy of his former colleague—the "happy warrior."

Indeed, the address was a keynote speech if ever there was one. It was a clarion call to the constitution. There was in the speech every argument of importance that has been made in the last two and a half years by opponents and critics of the New Deal, but it was phrased not in the highbrow language of legal controversy or in the obtuse and ponderous words of some of our political protagonists, but in the language that the average man could understand.

Today the New Deal knows the case that can be made against it not by those who it thinks can be easily struck down with epithets about "entrenched greed," but by liberals, social-minded persons like Al Smith, who know best how to strike out devastatingly against exponents of "entrenched power."

The fact that the speech was made under the auspices of the American Liberty League, against which the administration has been directing its shafts because of the number of wealthy men who have backed it, did not disturb Al Smith, who was quick to point out that anybody who sets out to destroy capital must inevitably bring about the destruction of labor.

He appeared ready for his own ability to make the American people understand that he was not afraid to speak anywhere, at any time, under any auspices, for, as he expressed it:

"I represent no group, no man, and I speak for no man or no group, but I do speak for what I believe to be the interests of the great rank and file of the American people, in which class I belong."

The administration may be getting ready to "smear" Al Smith. It would not be surprising. A senate speech last week already intimated as much. For what would be a mistake. For what Al Smith says is born of a sincerity which, at the outset of his remarks, he so firmly established when he announced that he was not a candidate "for any nomination by any party at any time."

The former governor did not outline what course he and those who believe with him might take in the next several months. This much is sure—he has started a revolt and has issued a warning to the members of his own party. Since the president can by his power and influence hand-pick the delegates, it would seem futile to seek within the Democratic party to achieve the acceptance of constitutional principles. But nevertheless the fight has to be made there, if only to make clear to the Democrats that their opportunity to preserve their party is impaired by New Dealism and socialism.

Mr. Smith's strategy in reading the Democratic platform of 1932 plank by plank, and calling for its endorsement and fulfillment, his statement that Mr. Roosevelt had deserted the Democratic party to embrace the 1932 platform of the Socialist party is indicative of what may be expected to be the nature of the forthcoming struggle in the pre-convention months.

Throughout the south, for example, in the Democratic primaries, which are equivalent to election, senators and representatives are soon to be nominated. Will opposition candidates, claiming to be real Democrats, oppose the re-nomination of those who have voted for socialism in congress through acceptance of various New Deal measures?

This is likely to be far more important in the spring months than the perfunctory selection of delegates in the south for the Democratic convention at Philadelphia. It seems certain there will be a protest on the floor of the convention against socialistic principles and a record vote on what constitutes the main argument Smith made—namely, an effort to secure the re-adoption of the 1932 Democratic platform.

PRACTICE

Practice generally makes perfect, but some fellows practice every day without ever getting good enough to be noticed by strangers, such as many mouth organ players, while other fellows can just naturally do some of the hardest things the first time they try, such as imitate a trombone with their bare mouth. This proves we all may be born equal but some of us have it much easier after words.

Some things want to be practiced as young as possible. For instance you'll probably never get a chance to practice breathing at all if you don't start practicing it pretty soon after you are born.

You should also practice being polite while you are still young, and then afterwards you won't have to think about your politeness, thus making it much less painful on account of your being unconscious at the time.

On the other hand you are lucky if you don't have to practice other things till as late as possible, such as walking on crutches and getting used to reading glasses.

A good way to save yourself from embarrassment is not to try to juggle 3 balls in public without a good deal of advance practice. This will also save your friends and relations from straining their politeness.

The best way to train dogs to do tricks is by making them practice and practice by the use of kindness that they finally get so disgusted that they do it by themselves just to get rid of you.

TALE BEARING

"O mother, you ought to have seen what Mabel and I saw. Over at Withers' house."

"What did you see?"

"You'd never guess. Mrs. Withers and old Aunt Mary were having a fight. And old Aunt Mary grabbed up her bag and ran down the walk and got into the car and Mrs. Withers, she slammed the door. And they were both so mad they cried like anything."

"They had a fight? Not really?"

"M-m-m, yes they did. And Mrs. Withers she shook old Aunt Mary, she did. And she cried like anything. Mabel and I saw them."

"Well, what do you know about that? Isn't it awful the way people behave, and at their age? Something pretty bad must have come up between them. I always thought they were too good to be true. Did they see you, Clarabelle?"

"Maybe. I don't know, but I guess so 'cause we stood right there on the sidewalk. But they didn't even look at us. They were too mad, I guess."

In Mabel's house things were different. "Mother, I want to tell you something. I think it is important enough to tell. Something is the matter over at Mrs. Withers. Aunt Mary went away with a bag and she and Mrs. Withers were holding on to each other and crying."

"Crying? Are you sure, Mabel?"

"Positive. I stood close to Aunt Mary when she went to get into the car. Bud Silver was taking her somewhere. It wasn't her own car, Mrs. Withers' car. I mean. And I saw the tears running down her face. I think something is the matter."

"Hm. Could you set the table and watch the vegetables while I run over there, Mabel?"

"Of course I can. I can cook the dinner if you want me to. You think maybe somebody is sick or something?"

"Looks that way to me. I'll be as quick as I can. If I can't get back in time to cook dinner I'll tell you what to do over the telephone. You will have to stay by for a message."

By and by mother returned. "I am glad you told me. Mabel. Aunt Mary had to go right off to her brother who was hurt in an accident. Uncle Harry is badly hurt. Poor Mrs. Withers is too sick to help herself. That is why Aunt Mary stays with her and this has been very bad for her. After dinner I'll go right back. Somebody must stay with her tonight. We'll have to arrange for help. Now let's see how those potatoes look. You did well, like the sensible child you are."

This sort of thing happens every day. It is necessary to teach children to discriminate between gossip that hurts and a message that helps. It is a terrible thing to train up a child to gossip and spread pain along his path. Terrible for the child as well as for those who are his willing audience.

Register Clearing House

January 27, 1936.

Editor Register:

Your columns of late have contained many contributions anent the Townsend Plan—both pro and con—and it is proper they should for this issue at the moment is probably the most important before the American people. The two chief factors which spell the success or failure of the plan are the feasibility of collecting a twenty billion dollar annual tax from the American public in addition to all other costs of government, and what percentage of pensioner spending will result in NEW buying. Unfortunately, most of the discussions in your paper have almost, if not completely ignored these issues.

In your edition of the 25th Mr. Vollmer, in explaining what he maintains will be a painless operation of the 2 per cent transaction tax wrote: "It has been carefully computed that under the Townsend 2 per cent transaction tax that a $5 pair of shoes would cost $5.35 to the purchaser." Now Mr. Vollmer certainly intended to infer that this rise of 7 per cent in cost would be a fair index of retail price raises. He also infers that operation of the transaction tax prior to the retail sale would have a cumulative effect in raising the price, else the retail price would be raised the 2 per cent, or 10 cents instead of 35 cents.

I don't know by what mental processes Townsend supporters arrive at their conclusion that the 2 per cent tax is as innocuous as it sounds, but if they would only take pencil and paper; look up statistics of the various business operations which must constitute the staggering total of ONE TRILLION DOLLARS if a 2 per cent tax is to raise twenty billions; and then figure out where and who this tax would strike, instead of taking the mere words of their leaders that its levy would create no havoc, they would save themselves some bitter disillusionment later on.

To return to Mr. Vollmer's inference that the tax would raise retail prices about 7 per cent. I have seen no current figures of the annual retail sales volume in this country, but net retail receipts in 1929 were about $9 billion, in 1933 about $6 billion. Let us assume the present volume to be $9 billion. A rise in retail prices due to the 2 per cent Townsend tax, using the above figure of 7 per cent, would yield 2.8 billions. This leaves 17.2 billions yet to be collected to make the required pension fund of 20 billions. I would like to know how this is going to be painlessly collected after every one is already paying what would be equivalent to a 7 per cent sales tax.

Townsend calculators overlook the fact that even if there is a trillion dollar transaction volume to tax at the moment it will shrink alarmingly fast if a 2 per cent tax is levied upon it. No one will use checks if it will cost him 2 per cent, especially as in many businesses a checking account turns over 12 times per year. Short term commercial paper, which accounts for many millions, will have to pay 3 1/2 per cent for 30 days instead of 1 1/2 per cent. I hold no brief for stock speculation, but a 2 per cent tax will materially decrease the volume of stock and bond sales, and doubtless will cause exchanges to migrate to Canada. And so on.

The illusion that 20 billion dollars can be extracted painlessly from the people of this country is just as unreal as the other great Townsend illusion that spending of 20 billion dollars by the pensioners will create a wave of NEW buying that will give birth to prosperity. Ninety per cent of the national income is already being spent in the manner that buys goods and pays labor, and it can't be spent twice.

Yours very truly,

Editor, Register:—Capital, labor and consumer must work together. Capital is necessary to make radios, autos, railroads possible. But how long would Ford make autos if people did not consume (destroy) them by millions? How long would flour mills and cotton factories run if folks should stop making bread or become nudists? Consumption does make business. Profits and special privilege as well as savings makes capital. No doubt farms, homes, machines, are passing over from the people to a few capitalists. Labor saving machines do displace men, but we would not have it otherwise. But should not the machine care for the men so displaced? It is reported that President Green has asked congress to investigate the machine. It has thrown so many out of work. And they will never get their jobs back. Shops that were closed are operating with modern machines with fewer men but the same output. Ten million men are in the market place looking for work but no man doth hire them. Folks want more goods but the keeper of the warehouse answers:

"We run our mill To fill our till."

No plan or setup can give ten million men work, but the machine can retire them to easy chairs saying "Under new management with less money I'll

"Supply the nation With bread and honey." Tollers are good natured but will they never get ugly.

A wit once said, "Laddy, if I had some ham I'd have some eggs if I had some eggs, but either capital must have a change of heart or someone must get over the door of the mill."

In the Long Ago

From The Register Files 25 Years Ago Today

JANUARY 28, 1911

Up to 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, according to the rain gauge of S. Hill and son, the rain which began early this morning had caused a precipitation of .70 of an inch, making a total for the season to date of 4.04 inches. Today's rain has been so gentle and at the same time so steady, that practically the entire volume of water is being absorbed, to the incalculable benefit of ranches and property.

Fire in a combination smoker, baggage and mail car standing on a siding at the Southern Pacific depot, called out the city fire department twice last night, and resulted in the demolition of one end of the coach. The first alarm at 10:45 was caused by woodwork catching fire from the coal stove used in heating the passenger end of the coach.
